Canada's New Destroyers At Halifax Slip In Through Fog With Escort And Get Welcome

Skeena and Saguenay Complete Voyage From England This Afternoon; Former Will Later Proceed Through Panama Canal To Esquimalt, Where She Is Expected Early In August; Will Visit Seattle For Fleet Week.

Halifax, N.S., July 3.—The two new Canadian destroyers, the Skeena and Saguenay, came up Halifax Harbor at 3.15 o'clock Atlantic daylight time, this afternoon to the accompaniment of whistles and blasts on sirens from ships in the harbor. Fog hung over the water and it was not until the destroyers and their escort were well up the stream that word of their arrival from England flashed along the waterfront.

The destroyers were met outside the harbor by H.M.C.S. Champlain, which has done duty for the last two years and which will return shortly to the British Navy, from which she was loaned while the new ships were building at the famous Thornycroft yards.

The waterfront was gay with flags and vantage points were crowded with people as the Skeena and the Saguenay came in from sea and proceeded to the naval docks. Long and low, and painted a light grey, the trim destroyers moved slowly to their moorings. As the new vessels rounded the harbor a salute of fifteen guns boomed out from the citadel. The ships responded with flag manoeuvres. As soon as official calls have been paid and returned, the Skeena and the Saguenay will be open for public inspection. The Saguenay will make her permanent headquarters here, while the Skeena will proceed next Wednesday to Esquimalt.

Preparations are now being made at the Esquimalt Naval Barracks to receive H.M.C.S. Skeena, when she reaches her home station on August 8 or 9. H.M.C.S. Vancouver will probably go out into the Straits to meet her and accompany her into the harbor. After leaving Halifax next Wednesday, the Skeena will proceed to Kingston, Jamaica, which port she will reach July 14, sailing on July 19. The next stop will be at Colon, on the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal. She will arrive there July 21 and leave July 23, proceeding through the Canal and into the Pacific en route to Acapulco, Mexico, where she will arrive July 27 and remain for two days. On August 3 she will reach San Diego and on August 8 or 9 she is expected in Esquimalt harbor.

One of the first official duties of the new ship will be to represent Canada at the Fleet Week celebrations which will be held in Seattle shortly. Every year the Pacific Coast fleet of the United States Navy gathers at Seattle and an honored guest for the last few years has been the Canadian naval vessel stationed at Esquimalt. H.M.C.S. Vancouver has been Canada's representative for the last few years and she will probably accompany the Skeena this year before leaving for England to return to the British Navy.

Commander L. W. Murray, R.C.N., who has been a popular senior naval officer at Esquimalt for the last two years, left the other day for Ottawa to take a position at Naval Staff headquarters there. His place at Esquimalt has been taken by Commander Ian L. A. Shaw, R.C.N.

NEW NAVAL DEPOT
Washington, July 3.—The $2,030,445 contract for construction of the major part of a new naval ammunition depot on the Island of Oahu, Hawaii, was awarded today to the Thomas Hawerty Company of Los Angeles by the Navy Department.

VANCOUVER MEN SEEK TREASURE

Cocos Island Expedition Under Col. Leckie to Leave Vancouver Next Month

Vancouver, July 3.—Lured by legendary tales of old-time treasure, a party of Vancouver men headed by Col. J. E. Leckie will sail early next month for Cocos Island, 500 miles off the coast of Costa Rica.

It is popularly supposed that more than 30 tons of treasure, valued at $50,000,000, are hidden on Cocos Island, buried there by Thompson, Davis and other notorious pirates of early days. Wealthy citizens of Peru are also said to have hidden their gold and jewels there during the revolution of 1833.

Simon Scored As Group Chief By Lloyd George

Leader Surprises British Commons By Condemning Man Who Left Liberal Party

Tells Simon Conservatives Will Use Him and Then Fling Him Out

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent
London, July 3.—The Commons was electrified this afternoon when Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, delivered a sharp attack on Sir John Simon, eminent jurist, who led a dissenting group of Liberals away from Mr. Lloyd George's leadership a few days ago.

Mr. Lloyd George's little band of supporters broke away in dissatisfaction with the Lloyd Georgean policy of co-operation with the MacDonald Government. Mr. Simon, in his speech, described the Liberal leader's speech as one of the most amazing incidents in his amazing career. The House was considering the bill to tax land values on third reading. Sir John and his independent Liberal friends sat immediately behind the front Liberal bench, from which Mr. Lloyd George spoke.

Earlier, Sir John Simon had attacked the bill. In opposing it he was not deserting but rather upholding Liberal principles on land taxation, he declared. These were violated in the present measure.

FINANCE BILL WITH LAND TAX GOES TO LORDS

London, July 3.—The government's finance bill was passed on third reading in the Commons today by 274 to 222.

The finance bill contains the land value tax scheme which several times threatened the downfall of the government while the bill was being debated in the Commons.

The measure now goes to the House of Lords. Yesterday evening an amendment to the land tax bill, which would have exempted garden cities and garden suburbs from the tax, caused a big flurry in the House; the government escaping defeat by only five votes on the issue.

COAST'S RICHEST CLUB IN SPORTS TRADITIONS NEARS HALF CENTURY

Richer in sports traditions than any organization on the Canadian coast, the famous J.B.A.A. in Victoria still carries on. In its new home up the George it is now rounding out a full half century of activity in all the sports that build physical manhood and manly character.

As a feature of its Magazine Section, The Victoria Times will publish on Saturday an illustrated full-page article on the past and future of this organization.

FLIES FROM QUEBEC TO MONTREAL IN 50 MINUTES

Frank Hawks and his speedy monoplane

Montreal, July 3.—Roaring through rainstorms and low clouds at an average speed of 180 miles an hour, Capt. Frank Hawks today shortened the flying time between Quebec and Montreal to a scant fifty minutes. Hawks took off from Quebec City at 9.25, E.D.S.T., and set his fast little Travelair monoplane down at the St. Hubert Airport at 10.15. The distance is about 150 miles by air.

Hawks planned to fly from Montreal to Toronto, from Toronto to Ottawa, and then back to Montreal this evening. The United States speed flier broke all existing records for the flight between Quebec and Montreal. Canadian Airways mail planes usually take slightly over an hour for the flight.

Guy Paulson, Unknown Fort Wayne Golfer, Is Leading In U.S. Open

Washington, July 3.—United States officials, after communicating with Secretary Mellon in Paris to-day, said they "hoped and expected" the completion of negotiations between the United States and France on President Hoover's debt suspension proposal before night.

Acting Secretary of State Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury will meet with Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in President Hoover's office to receive the telephone call from Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

President Hoover was not present when the convention took place, as he was presiding over his regular Friday cabinet meeting.

The officials said they did not expect any definite announcement until after Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge had their conference late to-day in Paris.

CILLI AUSSEM AND S. WOOD TAKE TITLES

Former Defeats H. Krahwinkel in Final of Women's Tennis at Wimbledon

Wood Awarded Men's Singles Crown When F. Shields Defaults Through Injury

Wimbledon Stadium, England, July 3.—Cilli Aussem, Germany, today won the women's singles titles in the British tennis championships, defeating her countrywoman, Hilda Krahwinkel, in the final, 6-2, 7-5.

Betty Nuthall and Mrs. Eileen Bennett, Whittinghall, British stars, won their way into the semi-final round in the women's doubles, defeating Mrs. L. A. Harper and Mrs. John Van Ryn, only United States contestants, 3-6, 6-3.

The victory of Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Whittinghall gives Great Britain three of the four semi-finalists, the lone outsiders being the French women, Miss Doria Metaxas and Miss Joanne Sigart.

Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree and Miss Dorothy Round won the final round in one semi-final, while Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Whittinghall are playing the French combination in the other.

Mrs. Godfree and Miss Round won their way to the semi-final round today with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Mrs. Pittman and Miss Joan Ridley.

George Lott Jr. and John Van Ryn, the United States' leading doubles team, advanced to the final round with a straight-set victory over Douglas P. Hughes and Fred Perry of Great Britain. The scores were 6-4, 11-9, 8-6.

Expect Accord On Scheme For Moratorium

Agreement Between U.S. and France Is Looked For Before To-morrow

Washington, July 3.—United States officials, after communicating with Secretary Mellon in Paris to-day, said they "hoped and expected" the completion of negotiations between the United States and France on President Hoover's debt suspension proposal before night.

Acting Secretary of State Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury will meet with Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in President Hoover's office to receive the telephone call from Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Mr. Ross took office as Lieutenant-Governor January 12, 1927. The full term is five years.

AMENDMENTS TO COMPANIES ACT ARE APPROVED

Ottawa, July 3.—Third reading was given in the Commons this afternoon to a bill amending the Companies Act.

The measure covers two amendments. The first provides that any employee of a company holding shares in the company may enjoy the house-planning scheme inaugurated by industrial and consolidated mining and smelting companies under which loans for house building may be made to employees.

As the act now reads an employee, holding five, ten or fifteen shares in the company, by reason of being a shareholder, may not borrow money from the company. The second amendment provides auditors of a company may be directors of the concern.

Pensions Tribunal Bill in Commons

Ottawa, July 3.—First reading was given in the Commons this afternoon to a government bill which would make several important changes in the pensions machinery.

The bill would increase from nine to twelve the members of the pensions tribunal, and the number of commission counsel from seven to ten.

In sponsoring the bill, Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions, said it was to ease the congestion of applications for pensions which developed when the new machinery was established.

LIBRARY FORMS TRAVEL CLUB

New Feature Designed to Stimulate Book Reading By Children

A Travel Club for children who read books and do not usually go away for their summer holidays has been started by Miss King, of the Children's Room of the Victoria Public Library. The prospective members of the new club must get a library card. They are then given a ticket which is good for "one continuous passage to the points punched below over the Victoria Library Railroad via Bookland." A map of the world is given with the ticket and each time the members start for new lands with a new book they put a star on the "face visited."

Through the Travel Club, the children will not only experience some of the delights of traveling, their reading will be extended and they will gain a background of understanding for world neighbors which is difficult to read in old-fashioned, while others are new books. The list includes: "In the Endless Sands," by Scott; "Call of the Wild," by Jack London; "With Lawrence in Arabia," by Lowell Thomas; "Grenfell of the Labrador," by Wallace; "Magic Forest," by White; "Chinese Ink Stick," by Weiss; "Boy in Kirin," by Padraic Colum; "Hans Brinker," by Mary Mapes Dodge; "Jungle Book," by Kipling; "Gay-neck," by Dhan Gopal Mukerji; "Daughter of the Samurai," by Sugimoto; "Grass," by Cooper; "Trumpeter of Krakow," by Kelly; "Little Boy Lost," by Hudson; "New Moon," by Meigs; "Book of Discovery," by Syme; "Moby Dick," by Melville; "Trade Wind," by Meigs.

MARLER SEES NEW CANADIAN TRADE POSSIBILITIES IN CHINA

Ottawa, July 3.—Enthusiastic belief that Canada might share to a great extent in several hundred million dollars more imports into China was expressed by Hon. H. M. Marler, Canadian minister to Japan, to Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet early this afternoon.

Canadian Press
Seattle, July 3.—The start of the projected non-stop airplane flight of Reg. L. Robbins and H. S. Jones from Seattle to Tokio will be delayed at least another day while they wait for their refueling plane at Edmonton, Alberta, to-day, to reach Fairbanks, Alaska. The two Texas aviators to-day said they hoped to get away early Sunday morning.

If they have the good fortune to reach Tokio Robbins and Jones have a "snaking bunch" they may try to fly back in an endeavor to win the $25,000 prize offered by Seattle business men. "Our plans after we get to Japan, if we reach Tokio, are very indefinite," said Jones to-day, "but we might try to fly back without refueling and win that other $25,000."

TO ADD TANKS
"We could add another gasoline tank or two to our ship and carry enough fuel to make the return trip to Seattle, and we may do it if the plane functions well on the way over."

"If we do not attempt this venture we intend to fly across Europe to Paris and ship the plane to New York."

Checking of their motor to-day was the last work to be done by Robbins and Jones in their preparations for the take-off, which they hope to make about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

The hop-off here hinges on the safe arrival at Fairbanks of their refueling plane, scheduled to fly from Edmonton, Alberta, where it was to-day. If the big tri-motored plane reaches Fairbanks the two Texas fliers believe nothing will stop them from leaving.

JAPANESE PRIZE
Robbins and Jones are backing the flight themselves and are out to win the $25,000 prize put up by a Japanese newspaper for the first non-stop flight from the United States to Japan. The Seattle prize restricts mid-air refueling outside of a fifty-mile radius of Seattle or Tokio.

The snow-white monoplane Fort Worth, in which the flight is to be attempted, is scheduled to be refueled in mid-air at Fairbanks and again over the coast of Siberia. The refueling ship is expected to accompany the Fort Worth to Solomon, thirty-six miles northeast of Nome, fill up with additional gasoline there and journey with the Pacific fliers across Bering Strait and reappear in the Port of the supply on the Siberia side. This is de-

SIR W. H. DYKE, ENGLAND, DIES

Last of Prominent Mid-Victorian Statesmen Passes Away

Canadian Press
Dartford, Kent, Eng., July 3.—Rt. Hon. Sir William H. Dyke, a prominent figure of the golden era of Gladstone and Disraeli, died at his home today. He was in his ninety-fourth year.
Lady Dyke, who is ill, was not informed of his death.
He was a great sportsman, owning an estate of 5,000 acres, and was credited as one of the originators of lawn tennis.
He represented this division in parliament from 1885 till 1906. He first sat in the Commons for West Kent in 1885.
He was educated at Eton and Christ Church College, Oxford.
Sir William had been ailing for months with pneumonia.
Born in the year of Queen Victoria's coronation, he represented West Kent in parliament for forty years, during which time he served as Disraeli's chief whip in his bitter struggle with Gladstone.
He was named Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1885 and retired from political life in 1906. He was the last of the great mid-Victorian statesmen.

Robertson States Much Information Gathered on Tour

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, will give the Senate before the end of the session a resume of his trip through western Canada, if deemed advisable. He spoke of the trip to the second chamber yesterday evening. He returned a few days ago after completing an inspection trip from the British Columbia Coast through to Winnipeg.
"A great deal of useful information" was gathered on the trip, the minister stated. Because of the impending introduction of government legislation dealing especially with the drought areas of Saskatchewan, the minister thought the Senate should wait until that time before receiving an account from him of his trip.

SAFEGUARDS FOR ST. LAWRENCE

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—Before the Beauharnois Power Corporation can divert water from the St. Lawrence River into the Beauharnois Canal, permission must be obtained from the Dominion to cut through a dike on the shore of Lake St. Francis, K. M. Cameron, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works, told the Beauharnois investigating committee of the Commons yesterday.
The government engineer said he would not recommend permission to cut through the dike until plans for remedial works in the St. Lawrence River had been submitted and approved by the Minister of Public Works.

COAL MINE BILL INTRODUCED IN BRITISH HOUSE

Proposed Seven-and-a-half
For Year

Canadian Press
London, July 3.—The Attorney-General, on behalf of Premier MacDonald, introduced in the Commons today a coal mine bill which provides for the continuance of the seven and a half-hour day in coal mines for the next twelve months with the maintenance of existing wage rates. The bill was read for the first time in dummy form. The present coal mines act, under which miners work seven and a half hours a day, will come to an end next Tuesday and the government hopes to push the new measure through parliament by that time in order to avert a threatened strike in the coal fields on the following day.
The government had been trying for the last three months to bring owners and miners to an agreement so a bill satisfactory to both might be introduced in parliament. The attempt failed and the government was obliged to bring in its own legislation as the best compromise possible under the circumstances.
By the terms of the new bill the seven and a half-hour day will continue for a year or until the government ratifies the Geneva coal convention, by which the miners' working day will come down to seven and a quarter hours plus one for winding time.

FEDERATION MOVE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Canadian Press
Pretoria, South Africa, July 3.—The unsettled state of South African politics, recently exemplified by the formation of the National Workers' and Farmers' Bond, under the leadership of Dr. Steenkamp, is evidenced again in sensational disclosures made by The Natal Witness.
Secret negotiations have been proceeding for the last few months with the object of forming a Natal political party. It is revealed. The chief plank in the platform, with establishment of a federation in place of the present Union of South Africa. The Witness reports George Nicholas of the South African Party in the House of Assembly has been asked to take the leadership. The National Workers' and Farmers' Bond was formed a few weeks ago to champion the cause of the "poor whites" in South Africa.

FRENCH QUOTA AND CANADIAN WHEAT EXPORTS

Ottawa, July 3.—The Commons was told by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, yesterday evening that the increase of 3,000,000 bushels of wheat exported to France during the first four months of the present calendar year has been due to the visit of the Prime Minister to that republic last fall. Mr. Bennett had had very satisfactory interviews with French officials, and the increased exports could be attributed to them, said Mr. Stevens.
T. F. Connelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, Sask., challenged the statement. In previous years Canada had exported from 12,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels of wheat to France, but the present rate of export amounted to barely 12,000,000 bushels annually. If that was the case, he did not think the Premier had been "on the job." The increase was due to France having widened the quota of foreign wheat permitted to French millers from 15 to 25 per cent.

Heat Makes M.P.'s Wish to Remove Coats in House

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—May members remove their coats while in the Commons chamber? Speaker Black gravely informed the sweating members yesterday their dress must be consistent with the decorum of that great institution, while at the same time parliamentarians might exercise their own good judgment as to what they should do.
In a chamber that was uncomfortably warm, E. J. Garland, U.F.A. Bow River, making his remarks on the ground of humanity, appealed to the Minister of Public Works for the installation of an air-cooling system.
M. N. Campbell, Progressive, MacKenzie, Sask., thought members should be garbed in whatever attire was comfortable.
H. E. Spencer, U.F.A. Battle River, suggested the Speaker might wear a wig as in the British Commons.

Woman Who Was City Treasurer Is Convicted of Theft

Baker, Ore., July 3.—Mrs. Emma Fowler, former La Grande city treasurer, was convicted by a Circuit Court jury here yesterday evening of embezzling $103,928.13 of La Grande City funds. The jury deliberated an hour and a half.
Mrs. Fowler faces a prison sentence of from one to fifteen years and a fine of twice the amount embezzled. The fine is mandatory.

NEW POSTAL RATE
Ottawa, July 3.—The extra one-cent rate on mail applies to letters destined for overseas. Premier Bennett told the Commons yesterday when, in committee of the whole, the House was considering the amendments to the Special War Revenue Act. Would the new postal rate be applicable to mail for Great Britain and France? asked J. F. Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata. The Premier's reply was in the affirmative.

WOMEN OF THE BUSINESS WORLD IN CONVENTION

Canadian Federation Meets in Montreal; Victoria Delegates Taking Part

Montreal, July 3.—Mayor Camille Houde formally welcomed to Montreal to-day the members of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs assembled here for their second annual convention. At the round table conference held this evening Miss Mary C. Mount, Hamilton, Ont., spoke and led the discussion on "National Speakers Bureau." Other topics were "Interprovincial Exhibitions of Commodities Made or Used by Women," "International Relations," with Miss Heneke, speaker and leader, and "National Programme Committee," Miss M. A. Wigley, Victoria, speaker and leader.

Miss Dorothy A. Heneke, Montreal, president of the federation, in her report stated that the federation had emerged from a year of depression with a much larger membership, and even a small balance on the credit side of the ledger.

Two-fold Policy
The federation's policy, as laid down by the first convention at Winnipeg last July, the president recalled, had been two-fold in its objective—internal and external.

The external policy had been concerned with the forming of international relationships, this extending the field of opportunity beyond the Dominion, the Canadian federation being entered in the international federation, which was constituted under a policy not conflicting either with the national objectives or with British interests.

Membership Increases
The international part of the programme, Miss Heneke continued, has been so successful that whereas the original organization only included the provinces of British Columbia and Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec, Ontario has now joined the ranks with four clubs. Much interest has been shown by other provinces in Ontario and in the prairie provinces. The federation now includes thirteen clubs, with a membership of 1,132, an increase of 449 over last year. Receipts for the year amounted to $632, and disbursements to $609.

Status of Women
Women's political and economic status in various parts of Canada, the problems that confront them at present and the benefits to be derived through co-operation in a national organization were set forth at the opening session.

Since the removal of their disabilities under the law, women of British Columbia and the prairie provinces appear to have nothing more to seek according to the legislation report read by Miss Mildred McMurray, Winnipeg. The old problem of equal pay for equal work, however, still remained.

Reports of the secretary-treasurer, Miss Ethel Thornton, Winnipeg, was read, also followed by the following committees: Publicity, Miss Rosa L. Shaw, Montreal; finance, Miss Eloise Chamberlain, Vancouver; legislation, Miss Mildred McMurray, Winnipeg; 1930-31 survey, Miss F. M. ## POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE WED

Miss Ella Waterhouse Married to Alfred N. Goodwin Yesterday Evening

The First United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday evening, when Dr. Clem Davies united in marriage, Ella, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Waterhouse, of Quadra Street, and Alfred Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Goodwin, Kings Road. The church was beautifully decorated with Shasta daisies, white lilies, pink carnations and ferns.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and looked charming in an ankle-length gown of white tulle, with pointed yoke and short flared sleeves of silk lace. The skirt was draped at the hip and caught up in front with a diamante buckle. Her hair was styled in a double strand of orange blossom at the back and clusters of orange blossom at either ear. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and carnations.

The only attendant was the bride's sister, Miss Bessie Waterhouse, in a dainty mid-Victorian dress of sea-foam silk net, with deep ankle flounce, and hand-embroidered flowers in pastel shades, tied with a velvet girdle. Her hat of pale yellow mohair was trimmed with pale green flowers under the brim and a green bow at the back. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, daisies, and carnations.

The best man was Captain Charles A. Goodwin, brother of the groom. The bridesmaids were George Brown and Charles Lewis.

During the signing of the register, Miss Eileen Bennett sang "Because" very sweetly.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Quadra Street, and the rooms were artistically decorated with Shasta daisies, pink sweet peas and white Canterbury bells. The bride and groom stood beneath a floral arch to welcome their friends.

Delighted by the bride's mother in a dainty blue georgette gown, and hat to match, and by Mrs. Goodwin, mother of the groom, in a figured nixon gown with brown mohair picture hat.

The supper table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, and was arranged with pink sweet peas and tall pink tapers in silver holders.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin left at midnight for a wedding trip to Portland, the bride traveling in a smart frock of rose beige and cream lace, with brown hat and fawn veil, and trimmed with brown fur. On their return they will make their home on Camrose Crescent, Victoria.

Among the many handsome gifts was an electric clock from the pastor and board of the Victoria City Temple, of which the groom is a member, also a silver berry spoon from the girls of the Live Wire Class, a silver cake plate from the Hustler's Club, and a silver basket from associates of the Studio Players and CPCT.

Mrs. Schautier of Chicago, who is visiting in Victoria for a couple of months as a guest at the Windermere Hotel, has been joined by her sister, Miss Hubbard, of Chicago, who will spend a few weeks here prior to leaving for California.

Mrs. E. H. Johnson and Miss Johnston of London, Ont., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. King, Harbinger Avenue, left yesterday for Vancouver, where they will visit friends before returning to their home in the east.

Hayward's Heath, Surrey, Eng., July 3.—Winifred Shottler, actress, appeared in magistrate's court yesterday and was granted a summons against her brother-in-law, Capt. Alastair Miller, widely known in London society, on a charge of assault.

Similar summonses were granted Mrs. Miller, who is Miss Shottler's sister, and another sister, Eva Shottler. They are returnable in police court July 13.

The magistrate's hearing was held in secret, and details of the case were not disclosed. Miss Shottler appeared at usual last night in a London play, in which she is featured.

At the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. J. B. Rowell, 1523 Chapin Street, yesterday afternoon, the marriage was quietly solemnized of Mr. Albert L. Moss of 632 Beacon Street, in England, and Miss V. Powell of 1025 Johnson Street.

Sunburn dangerous to some skins
What to do
A CONSIDERABLE number of blonde Nordics can't stand sunburn, says a noted health officer. "They don't tan. They just burn. And often they get actually ill from the effects of the sun."

And sunburn is not only injurious to your delicate skin, it is unbecoming. Better avoid it. Even on cloudy days there may be enough violet rays to cause irritation. Use a parasol and wear a hat. Look out for the reflected violet rays from the water and take your "Vaseline" Jelly along on all outings for complete protection. The tube slips easily into your hand bag.

Before you go out, apply a thin layer to the exposed skin, face, arms, neck, legs (if you go without stockings). Wipe it off with cleansing tissues and apply powder. This will give a protective film over the skin.

And if you feel yourself burning, apply a fresh layer and leave it on. Never mind the looks. Better be safe.

This is a harmless way to save yourself trouble. Do try it. "Vaseline" Jelly can be bought anywhere, in jars or tubes and it is very inexpensive. Chemist, Vaseline Manufacturing Co., Canada, 6520 Chabot Ave., Montreal, Canada.

GIVES RED CROSS MEDAL TO NURSE

International Honor For Nurse Vivian Tremaine; Nursed King

Canadian Press
Montreal, July 3.—A total of 19,000 children and 15,000 women were cared for, cheered up, and sent on their way by Nurse Vivian Tremaine of Quebec during one year while working in the Red Cross nurseries of the province of Quebec, Halifax and St. John. Miss Tremaine has been awarded the Florence Nightingale Medal of the International Red Cross committee of General. Only two other Canadian women have received this high honor.

A graduate of the Montreal General Hospital, she has a splendid war record behind her present peace-time job of nurse-in-charge of the Quebec and St. John nurseries.

In 1915 she was in charge of the clearing station at Alençon-Lys, and that year had the honor of being chosen to nurse King George when he had a bad accident, his horse having reared up and fallen on him. She accompanied the King to England, and was on night duty at Buckingham Palace for several weeks.

WAS L.O.E. MATRON

In 1916 she was matron at the L.O.E. hospital for officers in Hyde Park Place, London, Eng. and then at Buxton in the Granville Special, a hospital of 1,000 beds.

She has the Most Victoria and General Service Medals, the Royal Red Cross first-class and fifth-class rank of the Victorian Order.

When the Department of Immigration requested the Red Cross Society in 1922 to "carry-on" with the work of the nurseries, which had been begun as a war measure by volunteers, workers of the L.O.E., Miss Tremaine received her present appointment.

DUTIES VARIED

The duties of the staff of the nurseries are varied. All sorts of emergencies have to be met. Women with children bound for the west arrive expecting money to be awaiting them that does not appear. Food must be bought and the family financed. Sometimes a new baby arrives just before the ship lands—a layette has to be provided and the mother visited in hospital.

While the everyday job of assisting with ticket-buying and checking baggage are going on, the children are kept amused with toys, sitting in miniature chairs at miniature tables or else sleeping in the immaculate white cots that surround the nursery.

One of the most valuable "helps" women receive are follow-up post cards, in which they write their addresses, and through sending them to the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto the women are put in touch with public health officers in the district to which they are going. Women with young children are all given "A Canadian Mother's Book."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

TEETHING NOT A MYSTERIOUS PROCESS, JUST A NUTRITIVE ONE

Teething, a process as natural to the child as growing tall, getting fat, or sprouting hair, is hedged about by some really ridiculous notions. Because teething is to most mothers a deep and dark mystery, they are all the more ready to believe and worry over what they are told about it.

One of the amusing ideas which crops up every so often is that "early" teeth are bound to be weak. On the face of it this is most illogical. It is the undernourished child whose teething is delayed, and obviously the well-fed baby could build up good teeth and strong bones in advance of the average. Why should "early" teeth be weak? The opposite statement would be more nearly in accord with actual facts.

NORMAL TEETHING PERIOD

There is a wide range in what is called the normal teething period. Tooth buds are in the gums throughout the largest part of the pre-natal period. Usually they begin to erupt from the fifth to the eighth months, and if teeth appear earlier than that, there is no cause for concern, but the diet should be corrected if they appear much later than the eighth month. My leaflet, "Average Ages at Which First and Second Teeth Appear," will help the mother decide whether her own baby's teeth are within this normal age range. A self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompany each request for this leaflet.

Another of those ever-green notions about teething is that if the baby has no teeth at the proper time, his mother should keep on nursing him until the teeth appear. If the nursing baby fails to teethe at the proper age, then diet and diet alone, is responsible for it. To continue the same diet that has already proved itself faulty is like ramming one's head against a stone wall in the hope that some day the wall may give way. Clearly, the child needs a better diet, and between eight months and one year, the better diet must come from some other source besides the mother.

DIET IMPORTANT

Mothers would save themselves worry and discouragement if they deflected their ears to what they hear and obtained their information from authoritative sources. There is no hocus-mucus about teething, really no mystery at all. Teeth grow for the same reasons that affect all other cause they are receiving from the diet those elements which admit of perfect development. The diet alone supplies the body with those materials from which its component parts are built. Delayed teething or crumbly teeth must be traced to inadequate nourishment, or to such devastating illness of mother or child as contribute to this deficiency.

Gray Line Employees

Hold Outing at New Hamsterley Malahat

Last evening at the delightful tea-room at Hamsterley Malahat, through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buller, the annual outing of the employees and friends of the Gray Line Motor Tours was held.

The party left the city in one of the company's large buses and journeyed to the top of the mountain, where they were received by the hostess, Mrs. Buller.

The evening was spent in dancing in the newly constructed dance hall, after which the party retired to the spacious tea-room overlooking the Saanich peninsula. A bright moon over the water made a picturesque sight.

After the very enjoyable party was over the guests extended thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Buller for the most delightful time.

Bob Pearce Reaches Final of Diamond Sculls At Henley

Canadian Pulls To Easy Victory Over L. Southwood To-day

Giant Sculler From Hamilton, Ont., Will Meet F. Bradley, Cambridge, To-morrow in Deciding Race for Historic Honors; Bradley Defeats L. Clive, Oxford, In Semi-finals; Pearce Uses Terrific Power To Defeat Southwood, a More Polished Oarsman; Fine Weather Brings Out Large Crowd.

Henley-on-Thames, Eng., July 3.—Bob Pearce, Canada, successfully passed his third test in the Diamond Sculls this afternoon and to-morrow will enter the final with F. Bradley of Pembroke College, Cambridge.

Pearce to-day easily defeated L. F. Southwood of the Thames Rowing Club, racing over the Henley course of a mile and 550 yards in nine minutes and eleven seconds.

This time was twenty-six seconds faster than Bradley's time, defeating L. Clive of Oxford in the other semi-final to-day.

Southwood, who had been impressive in his two previous diamond sculls victories this week, was no match for the giant Canadian sculler, who holds the Olympic and British Empire single championships. Pearce burst away from the start at thirty-two strokes to the minute and by Temple Island had a length lead over Southwood, who was sculling in beautiful style. Bob gradually increased his lead to a great margin as he forged along at twenty-eight strokes to the minute, while Southwood, more polished oarsman but less powerful, plugged along. The latter part of the race was a procession and Pearce, still keeping a steady twenty-eight-stroke beat, finished fourteen seconds in front of his opponent.

Thousands of gaily-dressed visitors lined the banks. The London Rowing Club's senior eight defeated the crack Berliner Ruder crew, Germany, by a third of a length in the semi-final of the grand challenge cup, senior event for eight.

The race was the feature of the crew racing on to-day's great semi-final programme. The big London eight, however, had the advantage, covering the course in the fairly fast time of 7 minutes and 30 seconds to victory for to-morrow's final.

EASY VICTORY
Magdalen College, Cambridge, defeated Lonsbury in a heat of the Thames Cup, junior eight's event, by a length in 7.40 after an easy race in which they were never really tested. Jesus College defeated First Trinity by a length in 8.53, in a semi-final of the ladies challenge plate for eight-oared crews. The race was well rowed and exciting. Jesus College grimly hanging on to the lead they had established at the half-mile post.

Yesterday's chill wind and lowering skies gave way to-day to sunshine and light breezes, and a great crowd turned out for "semi-final" day. The beautiful Henley reach of the Thames was crowded with rivercraft right to the booms marking the historic course, and

Weinstein Coming To Defend Honors

Crack Portland Tennis Player Will Enter City Clay Court Championship

Tournament Opens on Kingston St. Courts July 11; Entries Close July 9

With the opening of the Victoria clay court championships carded for Saturday, July 11, on the courts of the Kingston Street Club, local players will make their first attack on the season's open tournaments. Together with the announcement of this tournament, comes word from Portland that Irving Weinstein, last year's single champion, will come north to defend his laurels.

Weinstein gave a wonderful display of tennis last year, and throughout the entire tournament was not forced to extend himself to the limit. Local tennis enthusiasts will welcome the news of the reappearance here of this player, as his style and play were worth watching.

The other divisions are expected to draw large entry lists with players from every city club and many of the up-and-coming mainline clubs. Last year this tournament was an outstanding success.

ENTRIES CLOSE JULY 9
Entries may be made on cards provided at the different local clubs or may be sent to Tommy Forbes, Victoria Sporting Goods Co., before 6 o'clock on July 9.

Events and last year's champions follow:
Men's singles—Irrving Weinstein, Portland, Ore.
Men's doubles—E. E. McCallum and Marsh Gordon, Victoria.
Women's doubles—Mary Campbell and Helen Talow, Victoria.
Mixed doubles—Mary Campbell and Ross Hocking, Victoria.

Two exhibition ball games will be played to-morrow at the Royal Athletic Park with the Elks opposing the Schaffer Box Company team, all-city champions of Tacoma, in the twin bill. The first game will get under way at 3:30 o'clock, with the evening fixture starting at 6:15.

In the afternoon battle Jack Noble will take the mound for the local league leaders, while "Doc" Webster will handle the pitching duties in the second game.

George Phillips, star moundsman in the Schaffer Box Company's camp, is expected to get the mound duty assignment in the matinee encounter, with Wright hurling in the nightcap. Phillips, it will be remembered, hurled the Tacoma Kittens to victory here about three weeks ago.

Victoria fans have seen the Kittens in action three times and know them to be a snappy ball club. The Schaffer Box Company is capable of playing the same kind of ball.

THE JUMPING-JACKS OF THE BOXING RING

Did you ever stop to wonder why boxers when they first step into a strange ring step out to the centre and dance around a bit, and when they return to their corners seize the ropes and alternately squat and come up on their toes? Most people think that it is to cover up nervousness.

James J. Corbett, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, claims that it was the originator of the mid-ring dance idea. He says that when he stepped into the ring at New Orleans, he was told to dance.

New York Giants Cut Cards' Lead To Game and Half

Frank Hogan's Home Run With Two Aboard Gives Gotham Club 3 to 2 Victory Over St. Louis Yesterday; Chicago Hold Place Behind Giants With Win Over Phillies in Eleven Innings; Athletics Take 12 to 4 Shellacking From Cleveland; Yankees and Washington Both Win.

At home or away, inter-sectional games in the American League seem to bring about the same results for all the clubs except the St. Louis Browns. A complete round of games with the eastern clubs of the circuit playing in the west which wound up yesterday, brought just one big change in the standing.

The Browns, who started their campaign at Sportmen's Park against the eastern invaders in last place, finished yesterday a good fifth in the standing with a 13-10-1 record. The Chicago White Sox dropped from fifth to eighth in the same time. St. Louis won thirteen games and lost five, while the White Sox had only five victories to twelve defeats.

The rest of the standings remained about the same with the eastern division pulling slowly ahead. The four eastern clubs pulled out a slight margin of victories, winning thirty-four games and losing thirty-two. Boston alone fared badly among the invaders, recording only seven victories against nine defeats. Cleveland reversed those figures to become a second western club, winning thirteen games and losing only five. The Browns 13 to 5 in the final game yesterday, came home all square for the tour, with eight victories and as many defeats, but lost a game to its rivals Philadelphia and New York.

JOKERS REGAIN SOFTBALL LEAD BY CLOSE WIN

Defeat The Times 5 to 3 and Go Back to Top Rung in Westholme League

Colwood Surprise By Beating Todds; Moose Take Aztecs 7 to 5

Close games were the order in the Westholme Softball League games yesterday evening, which saw The Times displaced at the top of the standings by the Jokers, first half champions. The Jokers took a 5 to 3 decision from The Times at Beacon Hill. Meanwhile surprise wins were recorded by Colwood, who took Todds 7 to 6, and by the Moose, who defeated the Aztecs 7 to 5.

With only two games of the schedule left, the Jokers are in a good spot to repeat their victory of the first half and clinch the league championship for another year.

The game at Beacon Hill yesterday evening was hard fought from start to finish. Both teams scored all their runs in two innings but the Jokers always had the edge after pushing over five runners in the fourth. A ninth-inning rally produced two more runs for the Jokers but they were not enough.

Colwood and Todds had a ding-dong battle at Victoria West and the winners played good ball to defeat the woodenmen.

Art Cart's pitching at Hampton Road and took the short end by a two-run margin.

Wins Rough Bout

San Francisco, July 3.—Renato Gardini, the pride of little Italy, yesterday evening took two out of three falls to defeat Joe Vargas, Hungarian, in a rough and tumble wrestling match at Golden Gate Arena.

The Italian, weighing 220 pounds, connected with the first fall in twenty minutes, falling his 200-pound opponent with a body slam. Vargas came back in the second to take it in twelve minutes with a similar throw, while Gardini copped a third with a flying tackle.

To-day at the Royal Victoria Theatre, where the super walkathon endurance contest is now in full swing, there will be two big shows, commencing at 8 o'clock in the evening until 11.30 o'clock and from 11.30 until the finish. Horns, hats, souvenirs, noise makers and whistles will be given to everybody. This frolic will also usher in the one-hundred-and-first hour in this super walkathon. A clever programme by the contestants themselves and the superb added programme of diversified entertainment specialties will make this event the biggest midnight frolic Victoria has ever seen, the promoters claim.

DOMINION THEATRE

It looks as though Clark Gable is going to follow the path of Robert Montgomery which led the latter to stardom within less than two years. For Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is giving Gable assignments opposite the same feminine stars with whom Montgomery gained his experience. Having played opposite Joan Crawford in "Dance, Fools, Dance," this rising young actor is now cast in a featured role in the new Norma Shearer drama, "A Free Soul."

OTHER PEOPLE'S VIEWS

WATER-DIVINING

dividuals possess the gift, and all give many instances to prove the efficiency of the diviner and his rod, which incidentally is more often of hazel or whitehorn than willow or paper as suggested. Now according to "Alexander," the so-called diviner when he reaches a likely looking spot, selected presumably by the presence of maple, willow or cedar trees, proceeds to pull the ends of his divining rod at forty-five degrees and causes it to point downwards when and where he wishes, and a well is dug at that spot! This simple method is especially easy when the ground under examination happens to be a clear field or open space devoid of trees, as is frequently the case. I recently received a book from England entitled "Spiritualism and How to Discover Them by the Divining Rod," written by a celebrated Old Country water diviner, Mr. B. Thompson, (author of "The Theory of Water Finding"), published by Hurs and Blackett, London, England. Mr. Thompson, besides writing a very interesting account of his experience as a water finder, gives a list of patrons for whom he has successfully found water.

His list starts with forty titled individuals, among which were such well-known names as the Dukes of Marlborough, Portland, Beaufort, Grafton, etc., also John Methuen, Fisher and Brasse, etc., people who would not for a moment allow their names to appear in print in support of a fraudulent claim. The list includes 235 names on whose estates water has been successfully obtained, also the names of twenty-two country towns, rural districts and parish councils (two of which are in South Africa); ten architects and six land companies and laundries (two in South Africa), ten clergymen, six solicitors (including Sir Vincent Callard Bart.), seventeen engineers, fifteen dentists, five manufacturers (including Messrs. Peak, Frean and Co.), twelve dairies, eleven breweries (including Charrington's, Burton on Trent), four railway companies (including the London North Western and Great Central Railways), four waterworks companies, Yorkshire, Westbury, Pontpool and Poole, Dorset, and last but not least, Oxford, Worcester, Balliol and Oriel Colleges at Oxford, and Gonville, Caine, Magdalene and St. John's Colleges at Cambridge.

In view of "Alexander's" easy detection of the fraudulent methods of water diviners, it is indeed surprising that some of the learned authorities of the above-named colleges did not realize that Mr. Thompson was just exploiting the "law of resultant of forces" and was guessing or trusting to luck that he struck water? (I presume the college authorities were qualified and had passed their high school matriculation or its equivalent).

Mr. Wrigglesworth, of local fame as a water diviner, in his recent interview with your reporter, pointed out that Miss Penrose (who has, I believe, come from Cornwall, Eng.), and is at present employed by the Provincial Government localities where the water is in the Okanagan and Peace River districts, was not unique in her "gift" as a water finder, but that he and also others already in British Columbia, possessed the same "gift." Mr. Wrigglesworth also claimed to have successfully located 1,000 wells in and around the local district and I have no doubt whatever that, like myself, he has letters of commendation proving his claims. Taken together with the list of Mr. Thompson's patrons, should help to make "Alexander" realize that perhaps there is more than the "law of resultant of forces" concerned in the operations of the genuine diviner, and that the results (which are what count), which the diviner obtains, are not, "pure luck" or, as shall we say, a series of fortunate coincidences.

HIGH FINANCE

To the Editor:—Your paper of Friday last contained a Canadian press dispatch dealing with the Beaufort inquiry. This set forth that the Dominion Securities Corporation and Newman Sweeney & Co. sold $30,000,000 bonds of the Beaufort Powder Company, retaining $5,000,000 of this and receiving 750,000 common shares in addition. This does not convey much until you follow the common shares a little farther. Of these, 150,000 are aside to be given the purchasers of the bonds at par, but not to be released until next year. To the purchasers of the $30,000,000 of bonds is also given the privilege, as an inducement to them to buy, to purchase the remaining 600,000 shares at $5 a share. This is given as a privilege and inducement to buy, so presumably would be exercised. This would bring the financial houses $21,000,000, so that in all for financing the Powder Company for $27,000,000 they expected to collect $24,000,000. How long will the people of this country stand for this kind of financing, for in the last analysis the people have to pay; the people who use the power will have to pay rates to pay dividends. And this so that the Dominion Securities and Norman Sweeney may make nearly 100 per cent on the sale of bonds to those same people. These figures are from their prospectus and are also shown on page 79 of Financial Post Survey of Corporate Securities.

HOPE RESURRECTED

To the Editor:—Good cheer is abroad, the government has realized what pernicious pranks master income tax is playing and has surrendered to the importunity of at least one branch of business for succor from the weekly impost. Now that a precedent is established, when the spokesmen for our manual tollers recover from the epidemic of aphasia that seems to afflict them, as will be well, even though the act will ultimately show as many patches as grandma's crazy-quilt.

Tragedy is now supplanted by a seriocomic setting, and the drama of the dollars, though of serious portent, shows a flash of lighter humor now and then; for a flash of triangulated travesty is witnessed, when sweet laudings from an unconcerned press across the sea, is fed the people here, even as our Ministry of Finance, in semi-apologetic vein, is making a declarative oration from a public platform, while the precocious offspring of his effort, in manner unforeseen by its conceiver or its sponsors, is flitting coppers from the spare-lined purses of some amongst an unwitting audience.

Verily, a bill should be faithfully scrutinized in every detail of the framing, lest perversity's imp, on mischief bent, softly enter as the watchdog sleeps.

CENSUS WILL AID BUSINESS

Will Provide Merchants With Valuable Information, Says Report

Will Not Reveal Operations of Individual Firm; Possible For Comparisons

Data which will help to solve some of the current distribution problems of Canadian merchants will be secured through the census of merchandising and service establishments which is being taken in connection with the decennial census of population.

The census of Commerce is advised in a report from Ottawa setting out the reasons for taking the census.

Business men, including wholesale and retail merchants, want more information about the internal trade of the Dominion, the report points out.

The census will furnish retailers with the retail reports of sales, employees, stocks on hand, wages, cash and credit sales, etc. They will be able to compare their own business with the total business of the country.

It will give the wholesalers the same sort of information about wholesale trade. In addition, it will supply them with more information about retail outlets and retail possibilities than anything they could get elsewhere.

The data gathered will be of great assistance to manufacturers in planning their production.

The government does not reveal the operations of individual firms, it is pointed out.

Under the law no one but employees of the bureau sworn to keep secret the operations of all individual concerns.

will be permitted to examine the internal reports of merchants, and no information can or will be given out by the bureau to any government department or to any firm or individual which would disclose in any way the figures supplied by individual concerns. Figures supplied will not be used as a basis for taxation.

Preliminary reports will be available promptly after all retail and wholesale firms have sent in their complete returns. These reports will be sent free of charge to all who ask for them.

One of British Schneider Planes Sinks in Harbor

Southampton, Eng., July 3.—One of the British Schneider planes, the plane, sank near the Southampton to-day after apparently having run into the wash of a steamer. The pilot, Flight-Lieut. Hope, was rescued by a speedboat.

Working at high pressure to complete the list and enter upon the long vacation season, the Court of Appeal at midday entered upon its last case.

This is the appeal of Henry L. Morley of Kamloops against Magistrate Robert D. Sullivan, over the conviction and fining of Morley for killing a pheasant out of season on the Kamloops Indian Reserve, contrary to the B.C. Game Act.

The court dismissed the appeal against his two-year sentence and conviction of Herbert Crofts of Esquimalt who had been found guilty by Judge Lampan of stealing Henry Star's motor car and changing the number plate.

The court also dismissed the appeal in the case of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, trustee in bankruptcy of Somerville Cannery Company Limited against Johnston et al., which had been brought by the defendants. W. E. Williams, K.C., counsel for the plaintiff-respondents, claimed the Johnston parties, who are government officials under the Fisheries Act, had ordered the cannery operators to stop canning on the grounds that the cannery had no proper certificate to operate.

The cannery people claimed sections of the Fisheries Act, which government officials were operating had been declared ultra vires, and as the actions of the government officials were ultra vires, they claimed the government officials were liable for damages. The trial judge had held that the government officials could not be held liable for damages.

APPEAL COURT ENDING LABORS

Kamloops Man Fights Conviction For Shooting Pheasant

Crofts Loses Out, As Do Fisheries Officials Who Illegally Closed Cannery

Working at high pressure to complete the list and enter upon the long vacation season, the Court of Appeal at midday entered upon its last case.

This is the appeal of Henry L. Morley of Kamloops against Magistrate Robert D. Sullivan, over the conviction and fining of Morley for killing a pheasant out of season on the Kamloops Indian Reserve, contrary to the B.C. Game Act.

The court dismissed the appeal against his two-year sentence and conviction of Herbert Crofts of Esquimalt who had been found guilty by Judge Lampan of stealing Henry Star's motor car and changing the number plate.

The court also dismissed the appeal in the case of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, trustee in bankruptcy of Somerville Cannery Company Limited against Johnston et al., which had been brought by the defendants. W. E. Williams, K.C., counsel for the plaintiff-respondents, claimed the Johnston parties, who are government officials under the Fisheries Act, had ordered the cannery operators to stop canning on the grounds that the cannery had no proper certificate to operate.

The cannery people claimed sections of the Fisheries Act, which government officials were operating had been declared ultra vires, and as the actions of the government officials were ultra vires, they claimed the government officials were liable for damages. The trial judge had held that the government officials could not be held liable for damages.

Cunard Line Will Have Anniversary

When the Cunarder Berengaria sails from England Saturday, she will celebrate the ninety-first anniversary of the sailing of the first Cunard liner for America. It was on July 4, 1840, that the Britannia, the actual pioneer in steam transatlantic transportation, set out from Liverpool for Boston via Halifax. The Britannia registered 1,154 tons. The Berengaria registers 12,220 tons. Great as is the difference in size it will be much greater when the new 79,000 ton Cunarder, now building on the Clyde, enters the company's service in 1933.

The Cunard Line was organized in 1839 as "The British and North American Steam Packet Company" and was the result of the labor and foresight of the Halifax boy who made his first money by picking and selling dandelions. With the small amount of money thus obtained, young Samuel Cunard attended auctions, bought fish, potatoes and other commodities at a low cost and sold them later at a substantial profit. He thus laid the foundation of his fortune.

Cunard's father was of German descent. His mother came of Irish stock, her maiden name being Margaret Murphy. His father, a Loyalist, came from Philadelphia, his mother from a hamlet in South Carolina. His parents migrated to Halifax in 1785. Samuel Cunard was born there in 1787. At the age of twenty-eight he was married to Susan Duffus, the daughter of a Scot. In the course of time their son, Edward, married a niece of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot. This all goes to prove that the great English steamship company started with an excellent mixture of good blood.

Early in life Samuel Cunard evinced a love for shipping. He was engaged in the business as early as 1810, when he became a shipbuilder, turning out eight to ten fishing vessels annually. In 1820 he bought an interest in a steamship project, and in 1823 he became a shipbuilder, turning out eight to ten fishing vessels annually. In 1820 he bought an interest in a steamship project, and in 1823 he became a shipbuilder, turning out eight to ten fishing vessels annually.

The first Cunard steamer, the Britannia, sailed from Liverpool on July 4, 1840, for Halifax and Boston. She carried sixty-three passengers and covered the route in fourteen days and eight hours. Cunard himself was a passenger.

The Britannia reached Halifax on the morning of July 17, made a short stay and proceeded to Boston, where she arrived on July 21. Boston gave Cunard a great reception. Two thousand people partook of a dinner in his honor. Daniel Webster was the principal speaker on the occasion.

In the same year the Acadia, sister ship of the Britannia, made the voyage from Liverpool via Halifax to Boston in eleven days and four hours, a record which stood for many years. The Britannia reduced her maiden trip speed by several days on all succeeding voyages.

As time went on Cunard liners met spirited competition by building fast ships. In 1856 the Persia made the transatlantic crossing in nine days and ten hours. In 1857 the Umbria and Eritrea cut it to six days. In 1858 the Lucania reduced the time from Liverpool to New York to five days, and twenty years ago the Mauretania raced across the Atlantic from Queenstown in less than four and one-half days.

The new Cunarder now building will cover the distance from Southampton via Cherbourg to New York in less than four days.

ROBERT

makes delicious
SANDWICHES

Mix a little with cream-cheese or butter and spread as a sandwich paste

Robert was having her first active misgivings. Surely Jack had conducted the negotiations with the owner of the dilapidated car in an unnecessarily harsh manner. She simply could not imagine her father, or even arrogant Sir George, speaking to those people in the way Jack had spoken, or giving them his name in such a fashion as to make it almost impossible for them to get it correctly. Then his sudden and abrupt way of giving in to all they asked, with a snarl, and dashing away. She had not time to wonder any more, for she caught a glimpse of Sir George as she looked back.

"Jack!" she screamed out, so that he might hear her above the roar of the thunder, the reverberation of their swift progress along the lonely fitted boards of the old bridge, the rain and the, to her, almost audible crack of lightning. "We're being followed."

Jack swore.

It was a simply disgusting oath. Robert told herself. She might be too modern to be shocked at a little profanity, but he simply should not say such things. She would see to it that she said that again. But Sir George! What earthly right had he to follow?

Sir George, only too anxious to answer that question, was following as closely behind them as Jack's speed permitted.

The old bridge, one of the few ancient wooden covered bridges left in the river at its widest. The quaint wagon-shedlike structure had windows at equal distances all the way across. These old covered bridges were delightful places in which to cool off in summer time, with their narrow windows showing every now and then the beautiful river and the equally beautiful shores. In a rain such as today's the bridge was a long, dim, dark tunnel, lit by occasional flashes of lightning. The noise of the rain on the wooden roof was terrific. Sir George, with a sinking heart, remembered his small supply of petrol as he increased his speed slightly so that he might not lose sight of Jack. He would save for the last spurt and stop Jack at the other side of the bridge just before he reached the highway.

Jack's plan was, of course, directly opposite. He meant to drive beyond the required regulations while he was on the bridge, and when he reached the entrance he intended to go flying at top speed up the hill to the broad highway that led to the New York road. He had forgotten what his pursuer suddenly remembered with a relieved sigh, that there was a toll gate and a toll man at the other end of the bridge, and there the car would have to stop while toll was paid.

Sir George, remembering this, relaxed. He could surely stop them at the gate, for Robert would hardly care to stage a public scene. She might even be glad to come back with him. If she was not, then it was a thing to be settled between Jack and himself. Sir George rather hoped Robert would not want to come with him at once, so that he might have that excuse to forward. The bridge behind them was like a funnel full of flames. It was too much for Jack. He started the car, determined to get out of it at any cost. As for the girl, if she was fool enough to stick by that fellow she could stick, he was not going to wait for her. The wind was blowing the flames toward him now. Half in despair of his carefully laid plans, half out of a desire to justify his action, he gave a loud call:

"Come on, Robert!"

There was no reply, but as the car started it was suddenly checked. Jack had forgotten that his enemy was six feet three, but Sir George had not. As he saw the only hope for the girl and himself about to be taken from them, he dropped the girl and flung himself forward in the running board. One arm stole about Jack's neck. As the machine bounded forward wildly, Robert screamed again and the car came to an abrupt stop.

A voice in Jack's ear had said: "Shut it off, you fool, until the girl gets in, or I'll strangle you. I don't mind telling you I'd enjoy doing it." Sir George, still with his hand on Jack's neck, motioned to Robert to get in.

"Now you can hurry, my man, as you've never hurried before. You'll hear something presently when the flames reach my car."

He released Jack's throat, as the girl climbed in, but still on the running board with his hand on Jack's arm, they dashed for the other side. There was a muffled explosion.

"There goes Ray's car," Sir George called to Robert, smiling at her with an absurd, singed and blackened face, like a man badly made-up for a minstrel show. "And I was worried about not having enough petrol." He leaned heavily on Jack's shoulder and shouted in his ear: "Here comes the fire engine. Get out of this bridge on dry land. Unless you rip out a little speed it will be a spectacular plunge into the Delaware for us."

"Oh, hurry!" screamed Robert. The fire was running along the roof. The exit toward which they were making was checked with smoke, with here and there a little darting, flickering tongue of flame.

To the left! Sir George shouted in Jack's ear. "There's less fire there, and sound your horn, you fool! Make those idiots hear."

The horn sounded again and again. Through the smoke they could see people running hastily. Robert could hear them call. "There's a car! Look out! There's a car coming through!"

But the village fire engine was at the entrance filling more than half of it and Jack was wildly swaying from side to side.

"Let it go!" roared Sir George and then he relinquished his hold on Jack and, gathering all his strength, leaped over and half-lifted half-pulled Robert. The car behind the driver. They rolled together off the car as Jack jumped, and the car smashed into the fire engine.

CHAPTER XIII

Sir George opened his eyes to a Danteque world on fire. He seemed to be in a world of shouting. Too. After a moment he saw that the bridge was flaming and burning to the skies and the noise was the shouting of the crowd at the collapse of the main part of the bridge. It was a tremendously spectacular picture, quite terrible in its beauty.

He was about to give himself up to contemplating it, when his half-awakened mind began to speculate where he was. Then as he moved slightly his whole mind was suddenly alert. He was in frightful pain, but that fact somehow did not puzzle him as much as the question, Where was he?

He must have said it aloud for from somewhere above him he heard a voice say very gently: "I'm here, Sir George."

"Like this? Let that Englishman gum things up? You're crazy. He put his foot on the self-starter."

Robert promptly struck him across the face and pulled on the emergency brake. Before Jack could recover himself she was out of the car and running toward the fire, through it, staggering, she could see a tall form.

"Bobbie! Bobbie! Don't be frightened!" Sir George called. "I'm coming."

Half sobbing Robert MacBeth ran forward.

"Sir George, oh Sir George, I'm all right! Don't Don't!" Then she screamed.

Jack looked back. The tall figure with his clothes on fire, his forearm over his eyes, to shield them from the flames, came striding toward Robert who, screaming, ran forward to meet him, flung her arms about him and began beating out the flames with her bare hands. And as she beat at them the man picked her up in his arms and ran toward him.

The flames were licking nearer. They were terrific! Another bit of the roof caught and, with a roar, the fire leaped

Warning to Wives Finds Worm Has Turned

LISTEN, sisters. There is a revolt of husbands on and it bodes no good to wives. The worm has turned at last and is striking at the heel that has so long flattened it out on the domestic hearth. And I am warning you. Husbands are no longer willing to take their wives "as is," as the shipping manifests say. They are demanding more of their wives than the old "standardized wifely virtues." It used to be that if a woman was "good" she was safe in her job as a wife and her husband charged off his disappointment and disillusion to profit and loss and let it go at that.

But those halcyon times for wives are gone. Husbands demand that their wives should be not only good, but good for something. They are no longer satisfied with wives who are merely chaste. They are demanding something more. They are demanding that their wives shall keep themselves attractive looking, that they shall keep their brains furnished up so that they may be interesting to talk to; that they shall be pleasant and agreeable to live with and be progressive and modern in their viewpoints.

In short, they demand that their wives shall be 1930 models with streamline effects, pointed up in the newest color combinations, self-starters and geared up to break the speed laws. And if wife isn't, if she persists in remaining a flapper with the paint knocked off in spots and if she groans and creaks when she hits the hard spots and never warms up to more than fifteen miles an hour, why she gets scrapped or husband trades off the old wife for a new one.

Believe me, my dear, the good, old, reliable, hump-shouldered husband, who stuck to the bed marital bargain he made in his callow youth is just about as extinct as the dodo, and he is getting extinct all the time.

Every day I receive numbers of letters from middle-aged men who tell me that they are leaving their wives and why. They say that their wives feel that they have done their full duty as wives by being virtuous and bearing a child or two and making a reasonably comfortable home, but that they have made no effort to be companions to their husbands or to understand them or to sympathize with them. They haven't even shown them any real affection.

"Years ago I tried to interest my wife in the things that interested me," says one of these disgruntled husbands. "I tried to get her to read the books that I was reading. She said they bored her to death. I tried to talk to her on the subjects that held my attention, but she didn't even make the gesture of listening. She reads nothing but the society column in the newspapers. Her opinions are the same as when she was graduated from high school. She hasn't had a new idea in twenty years. She hasn't a single real heart interest except about clothes and contract bridge."

"I loved my wife when I married her, but do I love her now? I despise the very sight of her. Do I enjoy being with her? I can think of no worse torment. Is there another woman in the case? Certainly. Why shouldn't there be? Will I get a divorce? Surely. Why spoil the balance of my life living with a dull, stupid, narrow-minded, nagging woman? I have too much intelligence to do it."

"And I speak," the man went on, "for thousands of other husbands who are rebelling at the tyranny of being tied to women who have come to loathe, whose only virtue is chastity. They have failed in every other way as wives and we feel that it is cruelly unjust that we should be forced to have them hung like millstones around our necks."

"But we are not going to do it in the future, and if women want to keep their husbands they have got to get it out of their heads that all they have to do is to keep in the straight and narrow path. They have got to make themselves desirable if they want to be desired."

That is the middle-aged man's side of the question. Leaving out of the discussion the right or wrong of it, there is one phase of the matter to which I earnestly desire to call the attention of the middle-aged wives.

And it is this: In the immortal words of Mr. Cleveland, "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us," and the fact stares us in the face that the marriage ceremony in these days does not give a wife a quit-claim deed on a man until death parts them. No woman can now frame her marriage license and hang it over the bureau and sit down and fold her hands and let it go at that.

Never was the position of the wife such a precarious one as it is at the present time, and the woman who wants to keep her husband has to be up and doing and repairing her fences all the time. In the past women felt that marriage gave them the right to slump and eat onions and generally let nature take its course in the way of fat and temper and dullness.

Few wives felt called upon to dress up to their husbands. Fewer still to jolly their husbands along, still fewer to be entertaining companions. Some didn't even think it necessary to be good housekeepers. A husband was somebody who had to pay his wife's bills, no matter how she treated him, and the position of wife was one that she didn't have to make good on, because it was a life situation that she couldn't lose if she tried.

But all that is changed. Every married man is now associated daily in business with women who are well-dressed and well-groomed; who are intelligent and efficient; who read and think and are full of new ideas and whose business it is to be diplomatic and suave and agreeable to their bosses. These women set a standard for women with which the wives have to compete, and woe to those who fail to make good.

Perhaps it is too late for the middle-aged wives who have let themselves grow stupid and nagging and narrow to do anything about it. They are sunk, but the warning is plain for all young wives. They must read and study to keep abreast of their husbands. They must make their husbands' interest their interest if they want to keep them from joining the revolt of husbands. For man's definition of a good wife has changed.

A "WITCH-DOCTOR'S" TRICK

People of every continent perform "magic tricks." Priests or "medicine men" among Indian tribes were in the custom of displaying such tricks at the time white men arrived in North America.

"Halt!" cried the witch-doctor, looking at the log.

In Africa the natives are amused and amazed by their men of magic, or "witch-doctors," as they are often called.

One day a group of white men traveling in Zululand paused near a native village. The chief witch-doctor agreed to perform a miracle for them. Leading his guests to the bank of a river, the witch-doctor picked up a log and placed it in the river. The log floated downstream until the negro shouted a native word meaning, "Halt!"

As the command was uttered the log was seen to remain where it was. "Travel back!" cried the Zulu magician, in words of his own language. Wonder of wonders! The log was seen to travel against the current! When it was back to the place from which it had started, the witch-doctor waded into the water and pulled the log ashore.

"Tell us the secret!" the white men begged.

The witch-doctor at last agreed to do so, after the whites promised not to reveal the secret to any member of the tribe. This is how he explained the trick:

"I had the log ready before you came. There were two cords fastened to it. One short cord was near this shore, tied to a stake under the water. The other cord was very long and ran under water to those bushes across the river. I have a man over there. When I put the log in the water, he waited until I gave him the signal to slip letting out the cord. Then he drew the cord in, and the log was pulled upstream."

"What did you do with the cords when you brought the log ashore?"

"They were fastened to a small branch on the log. I broke off the branch when I went out to get the log."

LONDON SPEECH OF FERGUSON IS COMMONS TOPIC

King and Lapointe Question Bennett on Privy Council Appeal Remarks

Ottawa, July 3.—The Dominion Day speech in London of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, came up in the Commons yesterday afternoon.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Liberal Minister of Justice, asked the Prime Minister if a copy of the speech had been submitted to him by the High Commissioner in London might be regarded as a reflection on the Canadian judiciary.

Premier Bennett replied in the negative. Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, suggested the remarks of the High Commissioner regarding appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London might be regarded as a reflection on the Canadian judiciary.

Premier Bennett disagreed with this DISPATCH QUOTE

Mr. King had referred to a Canadian Press cable dispatch from London stating Mr. Ferguson had spoken of appeals to the Privy Council in London and the following quotation had been attributed to Mr. Ferguson: "Some times we have heard from men of short vision and small calibre that we have the brains in Canada to decide such a question of appeal."

Members who had participated in the debate on the appeals to the Privy Council yesterday were not men of "short vision" or "small calibre," and the statement of Mr. Ferguson was also a reflection on the judiciary of the country.

The Prime Minister stated he had no reason to know whether the report referred to was correct or inaccurate. He cannot think honorable gentlemen opposite," Premier Bennett declared, "had any larger means of knowledge than I have in that regard. But this I will say: I have received several communications recently and I doubt not that some honorable members have seen an article which appeared in an English paper wondering exactly why it was that so many people in Canada, but not elsewhere, were directing attention to the speeches of the High Commissioner of Canada in England.

SAYS MESSAGES RECEIVED

"It would seem, as the paper indicated, that they seize on a paragraph or sentence unrelated to the text and from that endeavor to have it appear the utterances of the High Commissioner are out of line with Canadian sentiment. Be this as it may, this I do state with certainty, that he is filling his duties with great acceptance to the people of England, as is indicated not only by the very large number of communications which have come to me since the attacks were made on him in this House, but also by the public press itself. In view of the fact that in so many instances unrelated sections of his addresses have been seized on, I should have to be satisfied definitely not only as to the accuracy of the report just read by the right honorable gentleman, but also as to how it was said and when.

DANGER OF JOKES

"As I indicated some days ago, in matters of this kind very frequently observations have been made in a jocular sense, but when they appear in print they seem very serious indeed. That has happened on more than one occasion and to more than one public man, for the reason that in a printed speech you cannot get the reflection of the voice nor can you reproduce the facial expression as the words are uttered, so that in many instances what seems to be nothing more than a passing joke has been taken as a serious declaration or statement, because of that inability to translate the jocular into cold print. So I have no

HEADACHES Ended by Kruschen

"I was a martyr to headaches, with frequent attacks of dizziness affecting my vision. My occupation is a very sedentary one—a printer's reader, I gave Kruschen Salts a good trial, and from then onwards I seemed quite another person. The headaches disappeared and the dizziness, and the most wonderful thing to me is that I have gone back to weaker glasses, a lens which I had discarded some years ago as not being strong enough. I also suffered from bad circulation during the early mornings of winter. Now at fifty-eight I can enjoy cold baths all the year round, enjoy and am eager for my food, and am what I consider very fit—the sort of fitness that makes living a joy."—(G. F.)

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach or to partial constipation. The complaint is many indoor workers suffer from without ever suspecting it.

Kruschen Salts go right down to the root of the trouble and remove the cause by gently perspiring the organs of elimination. The function is exactly as Nature intended they should. (Adv.)

doubt that in many instances the remarks which have been attributed to the High Commissioner—and one in particular which is recalled to my memory at the moment—have been in a jocular way and were not intended to be taken seriously.

"So perhaps under the circumstances the right honorable gentleman will conclude he is somewhat in error in thinking the High Commissioner of Canada is endeavoring in any sense to cast aspersions on the judiciary of this country.

NO DISSENTING JUDGMENTS

"For my own part, I have always felt the value of an appeal to the Privy Council was that we escaped the possibility of dissenting judgments, in that a single opinion was given in the advice tendered to His Majesty, which has a most beneficial effect on the construction of our constitution and the body of jurisprudence which has been created by those opinions and judgments.

"Every one of us in the legal profession is well aware that in the various opinions which have been expressed with respect to the construction of our constitution in our own courts, we have had great difficulties arise. When it is crystallized into a single opinion and the jurisprudence has been built up from precedent to precedent, each case taking full cognizance of the case which preceded it, we have as a result a body of jurisprudence in connection with the interpretation to be given sections 91 and 92 of the British North America Act which, in my humble judgment, it would have been quite impossible to create if there had been no court of appeal such as this.

"Whether or not the time has arrived when this practice should cease it is not for me to say at the moment, but I do say to my right honorable friend that I am satisfied that any observations made by the High Commissioner were not meant in any sense to reflect either on the capacity or ability of his fellow Canadians or on their judicial qualities. I think that may be taken for granted."

Mr. King said the Prime Minister was entitled to express his views he might have in respect to appeals to the Privy Council, but he would ask whether the Prime Minister thought "the High Commissioner of Canada, speaking in public, should deal at all with that question except by instruction from the Prime Minister, for which the Prime Minister must take full responsibility."

"I am bound to say," Premier Bennett replied, "that I have never heard of any government instructing its High Commissioner to make a public statement of that kind on Dominion Day. It is certain that Lord Strathcona

SAANICH MOVES TO AID JOBLESS

As an immediate step to give temporary relief to the unemployed of the district, the Saanich Council, at its meeting yesterday evening undertook a $5,000 road improvement campaign to be run on a dollar for dollar basis with the provincial government, until the federal relief programme was set into operation.

Under this plan Saanich will furnish $2,500 towards the amount required for the work, and will secure an equal sum from the appropriation set aside by the provincial government for road upkeep in the district.

Reeve William Crouch, explaining the project to the council, told the members he had interviewed Premier Tominer, Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, and P. Philip, Deputy Minister, regarding the proposition and had secured their approval of the scheme.

The work, which will be decided upon by Hugh Allan, municipal engineer, will furnish employment for a large number of men who were thrown out of jobs when the money, specially earmarked for relief work in the municipality, was exhausted.

Champion Wins Fight

REFEREE STOPS FIGHT IN LAST ROUND AS STRIBLING WAS HELPLESS ON FEET

Challenger Failed to Hurt Schmeling in Early Rounds
And When He Tired Max Pounded Him Incessantly
And Had Him on Verge of Knockout Several Times; Georgian Fought Gamely and in Last Few
Rounds Was Helpless; Referee Stopped Slaughter
In Fifteenth Round After Stribling Had Taken Count
Of Nine.

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, July 3.—Max Schmeling, Germany, retained his title as heavyweight champion of the world here, tonight by a technical knockout over Young Stribling, Georgia pride, in the fifteenth round. Referee George Blake, Los Angeles, stopped the fight. Forty thousand were in attendance.

The fight opened tamely, with Schmeling doing all the pressing in the first round. The champion showed a desire to crowd the challenger, but the only good blows, being a left and right to Stribling's head. In the second round they speeded up, both fighting viciously. The German and Stribling both showed a liking for the left, Stribling driving Max to the ropes with a pair of healthy left hooks. There was little to choose between them at this stage.

Stribling demonstrated his boxing ability in the third round, sniping the German with hard right crosses to the chin and mouth. A hard right to the button hurt Schmeling and he backed away, but kept going in and was smiling at the end of the round. To a Georgian continued to press his advantage in the fourth, and Max's eye began to swell from the hard blows received. Schmeling appeared no match for Stribling at long-range fighting. Max went after Stribling's body just before the ring sounded.

CAME BACK STRONG
The German showed his ability to take punishment in the sixth when Stribling nailed him with a stiff right cross to the jaw and two left jabs to the face. He came tearing back again to force the challenger back with two rights to the head.

In the seventh, Schmeling continued his determined attack, tearing after the challenger from the bell. Stribling tried to hang on, in an effort to escape punishment, but Max hammered him with both hands. A cut was opened over Stribling's right eye and blood poured from his nose.

Stribling rallied in the eighth and kept in close to Max, jabbing him with lefts and rights to the body in the clinches. Schmeling finally broke away and charged again, but the challenger brought him up sharply with a right uppercut. Stribling was playing for the champion's body at the end of the three minutes.

RIGHT HAND LANDS
The ninth saw Schmeling get home his famous right hand solidly and Stribling nearly went down when the glove landed on his nose. This was the first real sign of any damage. Stribling was fighting doggedly, but he found it impossible to halt the dynamic rushes of Schmeling, who was able to take anything the Georgian threw his way.

Schmeling started his great bid for the fight in the tenth round with smashing blows to the head and body, and had Stribling reeling around the ring at the sound of the gong. The Georgian was a tired fighter, and bleeding from the eyes, nose and mouth. Schmeling was getting stronger as the fight progressed.

Schmeling went right after his opponent in the eleventh and hammered him around the ring with well-timed blows to the head and body. The German seemed to be in no hurry and was apparently waiting for the opening to land a knockout blow. Stribling's face was covered with blood and he was a bad way.

In the twelfth it was a matter of Stribling dodging, weaving and bobbing about to try and save himself from a knockout, with Schmeling pounding him with everything but the ring posts.

In the last three rounds Stribling was a beaten fighter, but he kept his kicking like a man. He clinched at every opportunity, but his face and body was pummeled terribly by Schmeling's right and left hands.

FIRST ROUND
Stribling danced in his corner and he raced out, sniping a left to the face as he shot over the first punch. Schmeling grinned, and backed the challenger to the ropes and hooked his left and right to the chin. Schmeling lunged in with a left hook that missed and he laughed. Stribling came in close, clinched and tapped three short rights on the champion's head. He drove both fists to the head again but Schmeling evaded him to the ropes. Stribling cracked a right uppercut to the chin but Schmeling nailed him on the ropes with a short left and right to the head. Schmeling spun the challenger around with a left and right to the head but Billy came back stabbing with a left to the mouth. The challenger whipped a fine right to the jaw and Max backed away as the bell sounded.

SECOND ROUND
The champion rushed but Stribling straightened him up with a left hook to the head and they fell into a clinch. In close, the tall challenger beat the champion about the body and fluted a short right to Schmeling's face as they came away. Schmeling left to the chin. Max drove his right to Stribling's head but the Georgian rallied fiercely and smashed his left and right to the champion's head on the ropes.

EIGHTH ROUND
Stribling jumped to close quarters with a left hook to the ear and tied the champion up. Stribling jabbed and held as the blood trickled from his nose and mouth. Stribling whipped a left and right to the chin and made the champion miss as they fell to close quarters. Schmeling charged forward and the challenger retreated, all the way across the ring before he brought Max up sharply with a right uppercut to the head.

He whipped a left hook to the champion's head and glanced another right uppercut over Max's head. They came out of a clinch. Schmeling's back was red with blood from Stribling's face. Stribling whipped a left hook to the champion's head, crossed his right straight to the jaw and was betting the champion about the body when the bell clanged.

THIRD ROUND
Stribling, a tall, lean greyhound compared to the dogged, crowding champion, boxed carefully. He stabbed Max's head with a straight left and then found an opening for a whistling right square to the chin. Schmeling smiled but he was stung and he backed carefully away. Stribling stepped into him with a smashing right uppercut to the chin and dropped another hard right as they wrestled in a clinch. The challenger drove his right to the champion's mouth, but Max beat a tattoo on the challenger's body at close range. With his back to the ropes Schmeling boxed at Billy's body and the challenger held him. Schmeling took another hard right to the head just before the bell but he was still grinning and slugged to the body as the referee waved them to their corners.

FOURTH ROUND
Stribling's nose bled a little in his corner as he jabbed with his left hand and charged again, but the challenger brought him up sharply with a right uppercut. Stribling was playing for the champion's body at the end of the three minutes.

FIFTH ROUND
Stribling jabbed a short left into Schmeling's bleeding nose. They swapped long lefts and the champion hooked his left short to the head. The champion smiled again as he missed with both hands, and Stribling drove a hard right into his side. They punched madly in a clinch and Schmeling twisted the challenger around and Schmeling seemed confused. Max's left eye began to swell, as the challenger nailed him again with a left to the face. As Stribling held the champion away from his body with both hands Max was no match for the Georgian as they went at it at long range. Again Stribling easily twisted the champion around and nailed him with a left and right to the jaw.

Max slugged to the body, forcing Stribling to the ropes, and beat him about the head with both hands. They were in close fighting viciously to the head at the gong.

SIXTH ROUND
They started clinching, but Schmeling stepped back when Stribling asked him to, and came right back with a short left hook to the jaw. Stribling missed a right uppercut and seemed to be getting careless and tired. The champion nailed him with a hard right to the jaw, but the southerner hooked a nice left to the head. Stribling jabbed the champion on the face, but he hooked him once with a left and then crossed his right full to the jaw. The champion grunted but never faltered. He tore right back at Stribling, smashed over two rights to the southerner's head and though Stribling laughed he held on desperately and seemed hurt. Schmeling tore after the challenger, but Bill scored a hard right to the head, as the bell rang.

SEVENTH ROUND
Apparently growing stronger as the fight went on, Schmeling slipped from his corner and was on top of the challenger, who almost before Stribling was on his feet. He did some damage and they wrestled in Stribling's corner. Stribling shot two straight lefts to Max's face, Max missed a left hook and dropped a short a left hook to the chin but missed and other and stumbled across the ring. Max countered with both hands to the head and again the challenger's face was a mass of blood, bruises and bumps, while the champion's features were, unmarked but for a slight swelling over his eye. Stribling weakened again as the champion bore steadily into him, cutting at him with short left and right punches to the head and body. All Stribling could do was shoot occasional punches, take his beating like a man when he couldn't land.

FOURTEENTH ROUND
Stribling swung his left in a wind arc to the champion's head and stepped into a clinch. Stribling waved under a right to the chin. He held weakly, his knees sagging as Schmeling battered him at close range. Schmeling chased the challenger around the ring, coolly waiting for an opening for the finishing punch, but Stribling held desperately. Stribling's knees bent again, a left hook to the head and another to the body and he being on to the champion. He tried firing long punches, but Max stepped inside and slashed at his body with short, jolting punches.

Stribling held on desperately as Schmeling hammered his sides, but he was still intent, bravely taking his beating as the bell sounded.

FIFTEENTH ROUND
Stribling came up weakly for the final round, retreating from the hands of Max as the champion pounded after him. Stribling got in a glancing right uppercut to the German's head but Max beat him about the head with short handed punches. As Stribling held

GORDON SCORES FINE VICTORY OVER KIRKBRIDE

Veteran Local Tennis Player
Enters Final in Men's Singles
Of Club Tourney

Don Campbell Beats J. C. Edwards, Defending Champ.; Campbell Sisters Win

Playing spectacular tennis, Marsh Gordon for many years the ace of local players, defeated Ronnie Kirkbride, Santa Barbara, 6-0, 6-3 in the semi-final of the men's open singles in the Victoria Club championships this afternoon. In the other semi-final match, Don Campbell defeated J. C. Edwards, defending champion, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4. Campbell and Gordon will meet to-morrow afternoon to decide who shall reign supreme in the men's division for the next twelve months.

In the women's division, Mary Campbell defeated Mrs. Richard Wilson, 6-1, 6-1, to enter the finals from the upper bracket while sister Helen defeated Mrs. J. C. Edwards, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0, to enter the finals from the lower half of the draw.

In the Kirkbride-Gordon match, the latter played the best tennis he has shown for some time, placing with great skill and precision. Kirkbride played erratic tennis, at times making remarkable shots, while at other times he missed set-ups. The U.S. player's terrific service was not working in its usual fine form, and in the final set he resorted to a more conservative style.

GORDON PLAYED WELL
Gordon played practically entirely from the baseline making only a few advances to the net through the entire encounter, seeming content to let his adversary make the errors. Kirkbride was not volenting as well as he has been in recent matches, but Gordon was playing his returns in difficult positions for kills.

Gordon ran off nine consecutive games before Kirkbride took one, and in the first set the winner was practically playing errorless tennis. Campbell and Edwards played a regular baseline duel, with Campbell showing the greater steadiness. In the first set, both players were bothered by the soft surface on the court, but it was not until the final games that any spectacular tennis was shown. In the first set Campbell was passing Edwards consistently where the former was unable to get a firm footing coming into the net. Campbell, however, was keeping the ball close to the side-line.

CILLI AUSSEM
AND S. WOOD
TAKE TITLES

Former Defeats H. Krahwinkel in Final of Women's Tennis at Wimbledon

Wood Awarded Men's Singles Crown When F. Shields Defaults Through Injury

Wimbledon Stadium, England, July 3.—Cilli Aussem, Germany, to-day won the women's singles titles in the British tennis championships, defeating her countrywoman, Hilda Krahwinkel, in the final, 6-2, 7-5.

Betty Nuthall and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittinghall, British stars, won their way to the semi-final round in the women's doubles, defeating Mrs. L. A. Harper and Mrs. John Van Ryn, only United States contestants, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The victory of Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Whittinghall gives Great Britain the title of the four semi-finalists, the lone outsiders being the French women, Miss Doris Metaxas and Miss Joanne Sigart.

Mrs. Kitty McKane, Godfree and Miss Dorothy Round will play Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron and Miss Phyllis Mumford in one semi-final, while Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Whittinghall are playing the French combination in the other.

Mrs. Godfree and Miss Round won their way to the semi-final round to-day with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Mrs. Pittman and Miss Joan Ridley. George Lovett Jr. and John Van Ryn, the United States' leading doubles team, advanced to the final round with a straight-set victory over George F. Hughes and Fred Perry of Great Britain. The scores were 6-4, 11-9, 6-6.

Von Elm Unleashes Spectacular 69 To Lead In U.S. Golf

Famous Detroit Pro Cards a Par-shattering Score
To-day for Thirty-six Hole Total of 144 in Open
Championship at Toledo; Guy Paulson, Fort
Wayne, Ind., in Second Place, One Stroke Behind;

Tommy Armour Shoots a Disastrous 83, and May Not Qualify; Henry Cotton Was 162 for Two Days' Play.

Toledo, Ohio, July 3.—Blazing away with a par-shattering 69, George Von Elm hurled to the front of the U.S. open golf championship field to-day with a thirty-six hole total of 144 strokes.

Trailing the leaders by four shots after yesterday's initial round, Von Elm went out with a non-disturbing thirty-seven, one over par, to-day and then ripped the Inverness layout with a spectacular thirty-two, four under par, coming back to cap one of the wildest second rounds of golf the big show ever staged.

Tommy Armour, British open champion, stunned the tournament by apparently failing to qualify with rounds of 78-83-158.

Armour took a bad forty-three on the incoming nine for an 88, and a 158 total, which looked too large even to qualify.

COTTON FALLS DOWN
Henry Cotton, of England, also fell by the wayside with an 82 and a 162 total for the thirty-six holes.

Eddie Williams of Cleveland, a star member of the dark horse brigade, came back with a 74 to-day for a thirty-six hole score of 145. Guy Paulson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., another comparative unknown, was a shot away.

Charles Guest, of Deal, N.J., who tied Williams and two others for the lead yesterday with a 71, also had a 166. Guest fell to a 40 going out but shelacked the course for a brilliant par, breaking 35 on the back nine to post a 75.

Preliminaries

Municipal Stadium, Cleveland, July 3.—Frank Cawley chief sparring partner for Young Stribling, drew first blood for the southerner's camp to-night by whipping George Panka, Cleveland, one of Max Schmeling's sparring mates. Cawley won the decision after staggering Panka with rights to the chin in the final round of the five-round bout. The Pittston, Penn., heavy weight weighed 165 pounds; Panka, 165.

George Pavlik, lanky Cleveland light heavyweight, gave Frank Morris, New York heavyweight, a thorough beating to win the decision in the second five-rounder. Pavlik knocked the New Yorker down for a nine-count with a right to the chin in the first round and nailed him repeatedly with rights in every session thereafter.

"Pa" Stribling's clown light-heavyweight, Battling Boso from Birmingham, walloped through the rounds to win the decision over Nate Brown, one of Schmeling's sparring partners, in the third preliminary that entertained the slim crowd, mightily but brought out little fight.

Boso cuffed Natie with both hands and tied him up tightly in the clinches, forcing him rather helpless most of the time. There wasn't a hard blow in the five rounds. Boso weighed 162, Brown 167.

McGibbon is considering the matter and is being given three days in which to make his decision.

SIR W. H. DYKE, ENGLAND, DIES

Last of Prominent Mid-Victorian Statesmen Passes Away

Canadian Press
Dartford, Kent, Eng., July 3.—Rt. Hon. Sir William Hart Dyke, a political figure of the golden era of Gladstone and Disraeli, died at his home to-day. He was in his ninety-fourth year.
Lady Dyke, who is ill, was not informed of his death until the morning of his passing. He was a great sportsman, owning an estate of 9,000 acres, and was credited as one of the originators of lawn tennis.
He represented this division in parliament from 1885 till 1906. He first sat in the Commons for West Kent in 1885.
He was educated at Eton and Christ Church College, Oxford.
Sir William had been ailing for months with pneumonia.
Born in the year of Queen Victoria's coronation, he represented West Kent in parliament for forty years, during which time he served as Disraeli's chief whip in his bitter struggle with Gladstone.
He was named Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1885 and retired from political life in 1906. He was the last of the great mid-Victorian statesmen.

Robertson States
Much Information Gathered on Tour

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—Senator G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, will give the Senate before the end of the session a resume of his trip through western Canada, if deemed advisable. He spoke of the trip to the second chamber yesterday evening. He returned a few days ago after completing an inspection trip from the British Columbia Coast through to Winnipeg. "A great deal of useful information" was gathered on the trip, the minister stated. Because of the impending introduction of government legislation dealing especially with the drought areas of Saskatchewan, the minister thought the Senate should wait until that time before receiving an account from him of his trip.

SAFEGUARDS FOR ST. LAWRENCE

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—Before the Beaudry Power Corporation can divert water from the St. Lawrence River into the Beaudry Canal, permission must be obtained from the Dominion to cut through a dike on the shore of Lake St. Francis, K. M. Cameron, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works, told the Beaudry investigating committee of the Commons yesterday.
The government engineer said he would not recommend permission to cut through the dike until plans for remedial works in the St. Lawrence River had been submitted and approved by the Minister of Public Works.

COAL MINE BILL INTRODUCED IN BRITISH HOUSE

Proposed Seven-and-half
For Year

Canadian Press
London, July 3.—The Attorney-General, on behalf of Premier MacDonald, introduced in the Commons to-day a coal mine bill which provides for the continuance of the seven and a half-hour day in coal mines for the next twelve months, with the maintenance of existing wage rates. The bill was read for the first time in dummy form. The present coal mines act, under which miners work seven and a half hours a day, will come to an end next Tuesday and the government hopes to push the new measure through parliament by that time in order to avert a threatened strike in the coal fields on the following day.
The government had been trying for the last three months to bring owners and miners to an agreement so a bill satisfactory to both might be introduced in parliament. That attempt failed and the government was obliged to bring in its own legislation as the best compromise possible under the circumstances.
By the terms of the new bill the seven and a half-hour day will continue for a year or until the government ratifies the Geneva coal convention, by which the miners' working day will come down to seven and a quarter hours plus one for winding time.

FEDERATION MOVE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Canadian Press
Pretoria, South Africa, July 3.—The unsettled state of South African politics recently exemplified by the formation of the National Workers' and Farmers' Bond, under the leadership of Dr. Steenkamp, is evidenced again in sensational disclosures made by The Natal Witness.
Secret negotiations have been proceeding for the last few months with a view to forming a Natal political party, it is revealed. The chief plank in its platform will be establishment of a federation in place of the present Union of South Africa. The Witness reports George Nicholls of the South African Party in the House of Assembly has been asked to take the leadership. The National Workers' and Farmers' Bond was formed a few weeks ago to champion the cause of the "poor whites" in South Africa.

FRENCH QUOTA AND CANADIAN WHEAT EXPORTS

Ottawa, July 3.—The Commons was told by Hon. H. Everett, Minister of Trade and Commerce, yesterday evening that the increase of 3,000,000 bushels of wheat exported to France during the first four months of the present calendar year had been due to the visit of the Prime Minister to that republic last fall. Mr. Bennett had had very satisfactory interviews with French officials, and the increased exports could be attributed to them, said Mr. Stevens.
T. F. Connelly, Liberal, Willow Bunch, Sask., challenged the statement. In previous years Canada had exported from 12,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels of wheat to France, but the present rate of export amounted to barely 12,000,000 bushels annually, he averred. He did not think the Premier had been "on the job." The increase was due to France having widened the quota of foreign wheat permitted to French millers from 15 to 25 per cent.

Heat Makes M.P.'s
Wish to Remove Coats in House

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 3.—May members remove their coats while in the Commons chamber? Speaker Black yesterday informed the sweating members that their dress must be consistent with the decorum of that great institution, while at the same time parliamentarians might exercise their own good judgment as to what they should do.
In a chamber that was uncomfortably warm, E. J. Garland, U.P., Boy River, made his remarks on the ground of humanity, addressed to the Minister of Public Works for the installation of an air-cooling system.
M. M. Campbell, Progressive, MacKenzie, Sask., thought members should be garbed in whatever attire was comfortable.
H. E. Spencer, U.P.A., Battle River, suggested the members might wear a wig as in the British Commons.

Woman Who Was
City Treasurer Is Convicted of Theft

Baker, Ore., July 3.—Mrs. Emma Fowler, former La Grande city treasurer, was convicted by a Circuit Court jury here yesterday evening of embezzling $103,922.12 from the city funds. The jury deliberated an hour and a half.
Mrs. Fowler faces a prison sentence of from one to fifteen years and a fine of twice the amount embezzled. The fine is mandatory.

NEW POSTAL RATE

Ottawa, July 3.—The extra one-cent rate on mail applies to letters destined for overseas, Premier Bennett told the Commons yesterday when, in committee of the whole, the House was considering the amendments to the Special War Revenue Act. Would the new postal rate be applicable to mail for Great Britain and France? asked J. P. Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata, Que. The Premier's reply was in the affirmative.

CENSUS ANOMALIES

THE CENSUS OF CANADA IS TAKEN by electoral districts and subdivisions, and therein lies considerable disadvantage for many Canadian cities. Victoria will suffer in the report which will be issued after the returns of the enumerators have been compiled, from the fact—well-known here but unknown elsewhere—that many thousands of people living within four miles of the centre of the city, and who are engaged in the daily life of the city, will be counted in the electoral district of Nanaimo, for that is where a large part of Oak Bay, all of Saanich and all of Esquimalt belong for purposes of Dominion elections.

If these people were included in the population of Victoria, our total would appear at least twenty thousand greater than it will be, and instead of an approximate population of 40,000, this city would be officially credited with probably more than 60,000. As a matter of fact, the strictly urban routes of delivery boys of The Times and The Colonist, as well as the delivery services of Victoria retail establishments, cover more than that number. Most of the new homes erected for newcomers who regard themselves as residents of Victoria are within the federal electoral district of Nanaimo, although they are within three miles of the centre of this city.

Vancouver will suffer a similar disadvantage from similar causes. Most of that city's residential growth has been in localities which will appear in the census returns under other heads, according to the electoral districts or subdivisions in which they happen to be. The population will be distributed among Vancouver Centre, South Vancouver, Burrard and so forth, notwithstanding the amalgamation of most of those districts in one municipality not long ago. The population of Vancouver will appear in the census at probably a third of its actual total.

Even if Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt were amalgamated in one municipality—which they ought to be and some day will be—their population totals would be given in the census returns according to the federal electoral districts of which each was a part. The only way in which these anomalies can be corrected is by an amalgamation of all or most of these sections in one electoral district in the redistribution of federal constituencies which must follow the census. There is no good reason why the electoral riding of Victoria City should not include all of Oak Bay, the urban part of Saanich, and Esquimalt. Certainly there is much more in common between them than there is between Oak Bay and Nanaimo, for example, or between Saanich and Ladysmith. As a matter of fact, apart altogether from census figures, Vancouver Island for many years has been atrociously redistributed, and no doubt will continue to be so until politicians forget the petty, peanut considerations of party advantage and think mainly of the best interests of their constituencies.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CANADIANS ARE TO BE GIVEN AN opportunity of telling the delegates to the world disarmament conference at Geneva next February what they think the nations should agree to do to prevent all chances of another war. Under the auspices of the League of Nations Society it is hoped to place in nearly 12,000 branch post offices of the Dominion a petition for signature which, according to Dr. H. M. Tory, a former president of the University of Alberta and now president of the League Society, will set forth the following:

The nations have renounced war. Let us also renounce the instruments of war.
 Competition in armaments is leading all countries to ruin without bringing them security, and this policy of competition renders further wars inevitable.
 The wars of the future will be wars of indiscriminate destruction of human life.
 So long as measures of disarmament are delayed, the government's assurances of peaceful policy will be valueless.

It is especially fitting that Canada should take steps of this kind to draw attention once more to this country's belief that there is no earthly necessity for the world to remain more or less an armed camp with more fighting equipment than it had before the war.

Ten millions of Canadians are living peacefully alongside 125,000,000 of Americans. More than one hundred years have elapsed since the two countries engaged in armed conflict. Not a gun or fort is to be found along a frontier of four thousand miles. Differences between them have arisen, others will develop from time to time, but there exists international machinery for dealing with them, and this has not failed.

It is this historical fact, presenting proof that war is not necessary to the settlement of international disputes, which should impress the delegates to the Geneva gathering. It should be safe to assume that the petitions about to be circulated will be largely signed. The men and women of other countries might well follow Canada's lead in this regard.

STILL HESITANT

FRANCE HAS BEEN TOLD IN A friendly but none the less firm manner by the United States that if she does not accept President Hoover's moratorium proposal in connection with war debts and reparations, she may be confronted with a declaration of a moratorium by Germany. It appears that the Washington government, willing as it may be to concede certain points to France, does not propose to back down in any important particular as it affects the main proposal. Washington's plan is a full holiday from payments for a whole year, not a partial affair, with a lot of reservations and its buts. Great Britain, on the other hand, has announced her consent to call a meeting of all the countries interested in Mr. Hoover's offer in the event of the conversations now taking place between representatives of the United States and France breaking down.

The point to be remembered at this juncture is that if the Hoover proposal should come to nothing as the result of France's objection to certain features of it, conditions in Germany may reach the pass that may be the beginning of complete repudiation of that country's obligations. Young Plan or no Young Plan. The question then arises as to what France would do. Would the tragic history of the Ruhr invasion be repeated? And what about Locarno, the position of Great Britain and Italy as referees in such a dispute, for example? Yet either France must agree to the American proposal, as the other nations interested in it have agreed, or try to take by force what she thinks she should be getting. Surely it would be in her own interests to avoid any further misunderstandings which might well put back the clock of peaceful progress in Europe.

ALSO BELIEVES IN FAIR PLAY

MANY NEWSPAPERS WITH VARIOUS political leanings and newspapers calling themselves strictly independent in outlook obviously have little patience with a small section of the Canadian press which is supporting a few politicians in their sniping tactics with the Canadian National Railways. Toronto Saturday Night has joined that influential majority of newspapers which is demanding fair play for the publicly-owned transportation system. It says in part:

Recent speeches in the House of Commons by Hon. Dr. Manion, Hon. E. N. Rhodes on the government side, and Hon. W. D. Euler on the opposition benches, were welcomed by most sane people as an indication that the ablest minds in Parliament have no sympathy with the outcry against Canadian National Railways as an institution. The idea that because a great deal of money has been spent in bringing the C.N.R. up to the highest standards, and co-ordinating systems that were bankrupt and derelict, this vast property should be condemned and starved, is as mad and malignant as the utterance of those who complain because the C.P.R. directors cut its dividend instead of resorting to the reprehensible practice of paying dividends out of capital. Conditions which have reduced the earnings of both superb systems are identical with those which have endangered many other great industries on this continent, and form no basis of sound criticism.

This well-known Toronto weekly goes on to say that "Sir Henry Thornton long since showed that he could bring order out of chaos in the colossal task of organizing a national system out of hostile and decaying units." It pursues the argument that, having accomplished so much, "Canada can trust him to devise economies to meet the present situation," and "if he can not do no else can." Saturday Night contends, too, that enemies of the Canadian National Railways who are also prophesying bankruptcy for the Canadian Pacific Railway are rendering no service to the latter institution either.

The Toronto newspaper's reference to Dr. Manion, incidentally, reminds us of what the Minister said at Montreal at the beginning of the year, after six months as head of the Department of Railways, when he declared that Sir Henry Thornton had "brought about a magnificent accomplishment in the Dominion of Canada."

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

FAST TRAINS PAY
 The Border Cities Star

Sir Henry Thornton says fast trains such as those operating between Montreal and Toronto net the C.N.R. $500,000 a year; whereas the least profitable trains are those which stop at every crossing and run like a scared rabbit between crossings. The only way out of the difficulty, as far as we can see, is to impose an amusement tax on the villagers who troop down to the depot to watch the trains go through.

SELLING TO THE SOVIETS
 The Washington Post

The inconsistency of nurturing Communism by trade and expert advice in order that it may tear down the system upon which civilization rests is too glaring for comment. Business men who are reaping large profits by selling obsolete machinery and defective goods to the Soviet do not hesitate to condemn the slavery, the atheism, the destruction of the family and the annihilation of individuality which Communism entails. They excuse themselves on the ground that if they didn't sell to the Soviet someone else would.

SPEED
 The Montreal Star

Hardly a week passes, in these hectic days, that does not witness some new and startling achievement in the field of speed. These ought not to startle us, in reality, since they are rapidly becoming a commonplace. Yet the fact remains that we do take a swift breath and open our eyes wide and manifest all the other routine signs of surprise with each successive speed record broken. A railroad car on a German line, driven by a propeller, traveled from Hamburg to Berlin, a distance of 173 miles, at an average rate of 115 miles an hour yesterday, the fastest speed attained being 145 miles an hour and the lowest sixty. The interesting feature about this is that it does not constitute a record for speed for this type of car. It does, however, illustrate vividly what we may expect in the near future.

Most people find a speed of sixty miles an hour on a railway train excessive and at times disturbing to their mental and physical equilibrium. Yet it is not at all improbable that many people now alive will travel, before they die, on trains that go at twice that speed. Nobody nowadays thinks anything of traveling through the air at three times the speed at which they travel on land, in a train or an automobile; and speed as such is hardly recognized by the passenger at all—there are so many other things to distract his attention.

A THOUGHT

Loose Ends

On making mistakes in a big way
 On the English language and young Mr. Churchill—On the new hats—And their alarming results.

By H. B. W.

THE PROVINCIAL government, I understand by the public prints, has explained the bizarre matter of those persons who did not get by admitting, with great humility, that it made a mistake in this whole matter. Concerning that I know nothing but the historic implications of this admission are arresting in themselves. It is almost unique for a government to admit that it has made a mistake and I rather like the idea. I am afraid however, that it is an isolated case and not likely to be repeated. As a general rule governments would I am convinced, rather resign than admit that they have made a mistake about anything, even about the appointment of an office boy. And many a foolish policy is followed lest, in altering it, the government admit it is wrong and so lower its prestige.

THIS HAS always seemed curious to me and some day when I form my own government (this won't be until after the summer holidays) I shall adopt an entirely new line. When anything goes wrong I shall call in the newspaper correspondents and tell them, "Gentlemen, I am able to announce to-day that the government has made another horrible blunder, but we hope we won't make any more before the week-end." At first the public might find this system a little difficult to get used to, but I would make it so convincing that it would be a remarkable success. It would take the wind out of the opposition's sails, it would avoid the necessity of the present laborious and not very successful pretence at omniscience. It would save so much time and trouble it would make it unnecessary to continue doing absurd things because they have been done in the past. After a while the public would come to like it, for the public knows, even if the politicians don't realize it, that governments, like every private individual, are liable to make mistakes. It is only on a more magnificent scale. Mistakes are the law of life and often, indeed, on contemplating the works of mankind I am inclined to think that the entire human species is a fatal error. Anyway, I feel sure the public will appreciate the frankness and humility of my government and in the end will come to esteem it more for what it does wrong than what it does right; on which basis my government, like all other governments, will be in remarkably high esteem all the time.

YOUNG RANDOLPH Churchill has returned to England to give his country the benefit of his opinion about America where, for some months he had been giving his opinion about the benefit of his ripe advice on the large issues of the day. Young Mr. Churchill's opinion of America, I expect, will not prove that as damaging to the prestige of America as America's opinion of young Mr. Churchill will prove to the prestige of England. But what does rather intrigue one is this enterprising youth's attack on the language spoken in the United States. He says that after a few months he was able to understand what Americans were talking about and also to make himself understood, and he seems to resent American speech as if it had no right to exist at all.

THIS SEEMS to be a common attitude in England and certainly is in Canada. We have a feeling that the English language belongs to us that anyone who alters it is somehow doing us a personal injury. The curious new fashion in ladies' hats, I mean the sudden baring of the womanly brow which, so long as I can remember, has been most sedulously hidden from the public as if it were something to be ashamed of and this so far as its exterior is concerned, is untrue and unfair. But now that the forehead stands revealed under the up-titled brim of the new hats, how strangely shiny and nude it seems after all these years of concealment! Were it not that we have grown used to nudity of the exterior, the bare forehead would appear almost indecent. But it is another aspect of this phenomenon that intrigues me at the moment and it cannot have escaped your notice. I mean that the womanly brow has emerged from its retirement and is now a part of the full of wrinkles. Yes, it is full of wrinkles no matter what its age may be. If it is over twenty-five years old or so it is usually deep-furrowed with lines of care, so that the net result of the new style, which was designed to cheer us up, is extremely depressing. I have pondered this

BURN KIRK'S COAL

"DOES LAST LONGER"

deeply and I can offer no satisfactory explanation. It can hardly be that the lack of brim on their hats is causing the ladies to think and ponder their brows in the sun, since nothing makes them blink now a days. Nor do I attribute it to the worry of the business depression. I am gallant enough to believe that it is the evidence of something new, of a sudden gigantic effort of cerebral activity. They are thinking. But why are they thinking and why I have no idea. Anyway judging by outside appearances, it must be pretty deep stuff. Probably they are trying, in a dim way, to imagine what hats and brows will be like next fall. But meanwhile the process seems so painful that I hope the evidences of the furrowed female forehead, will be hidden once more from view. No real man wants to see a woman suffer from the unaccustomed effort of thinking. He would rather have her say, Up to the advent of the new hats he usually got his wish.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
 JULY 3, 1906
 From The Times Files

Victoria citizens largely spent Dominion Day outside the city, attending picnics at different points on the island. The concluding afternoon of the two days' horse racing at the driving park, also attracted a large crowd during the holiday.

The glorious Fourth of July will be fittingly celebrated to-morrow, by the enterprising little town of Port Angeles, for which a really meritorious program of sports and amusements has been arranged. It is confidently expected that one or more of Uncle Sam's large cruisers will be in port for the day.

It is estimated that fully 2,000 people left the C.P.R. wharves, James Bay, yesterday morning, and the steamer Princess Victoria leaves for Vancouver from the Outer Wharf at 7.30 o'clock. The reason for the change is the prevailing low tides in the inner harbor.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity, light to moderate northerly winds, continued fair and warm to-day and Wednesday.

THE CANCER PROBLEM

To the Editor:—Hardly a week passes but we read of some wonderful new cure for cancer, or an appeal is made for funds to discover its cause.

For a quarter of a century, money, both public and private, has been poured out in order to keep research workers and so-called scientists busy. But busy in what? The taxpayers' money, as well as that of private individuals, has been used in the most wasteful manner, in torturing millions of defenceless animals, yet the cause of cancer remains undiscovered. There are many theories about it, but none associated with wrong diet, excessive meat eating, soil deficiencies or other factors causing "biologic changes in cells, resulting in the cancerous tendency to control the life of organization and growth."

An Australian doctor, Meyer, accuses the introduction into the human body of bovine protoplasm, which upsets the constitutional balance and disorganizes cellular tissue, calf cells growing more rapidly than human cells. In plain words, he accuses vaccination. More-over, it is possible to stimulate latent diseases into activity by such unnatural processes.

A few years ago it was my good fortune to make the acquaintance of a well-known doctor from England, whose chief centre of activity is the study of the cancer problem. He, too, attributes cancer in some instances to vaccination and inoculation and in a book he has published on the question he says, "These substances, (meaning serum and vaccines) combine with the molecules of the body cells and so alter their character in a profound and interesting manner. The result is a more or less permanent character in many individuals and in any case persists for a considerable time. The very common use made of these remedies in recent times has, in my opinion, a significant bearing upon the increase in the incidence of cancer."

It is noticeable that the increase synchronizes largely with the orgy of vaccination. Forty years ago in the London Cancer Hospital, this cure was exhaustively examined and tested and the leading barron said, "We came to the conclusion that it was perfectly useless in cancer, apart from the notorious risks involved. The cause of any pathological disturbances in the human body will be found in an abnormal condition of the cellular life."

 The first annual report of the radium commission in England, 1930, seems to justify this statement, for it stresses the fact that "great caution is necessary in estimating the value and efficacy of radium in the treatment of malignant diseases, and it cannot too strongly deprecate the creation of false hopes by means of sensational or even optimistic statements."

Nevertheless, we recently read in the press that a Radium Cancer Relief and Research Institute had been established in Canada, which "is not a charitable institution, but in which patients will be treated free of charge."

A Danish medical man, Dr. H. W. Andersen, who published a work on the subject of cancer in 1924, deprecates many forms of treatment now in vogue and looks for "some other expedient—less fatal than the knife, X-rays and radium."

The Medical Press of June 6, 1923, said, "the elusive nature of this disease has converted research study of its problems into an industry from which many gain a livelihood. If the cause of the disease and its cure were known at this day, much disturbance of vested interests would follow."

This is significant; the statement that anyone who does this with an open mind can come to any other conclusion than that to search for the cause or cure of cancer by means of experiments on lower animals is useless." (H. Gilford, F.R.C.S., formerly Hunterian Professor, Royal College of Surgeons), 1927.

SOLOMON SETTLED UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—At the building of King Solomon's Temple, the Lord and the king's private residence, King Solomon used 30,000 laborers in shifts of 10,000 each working among the cedars of Lebanon.

Each shift worked one month in the woods and spent two months at home. They were evidently satisfied with the way they were paid and the amount they received, which is more than can be said about those whom the city sent to work on the roads at Snake Lake.

Of course Solomon was a wise man, the wisest that ever lived up to the time of Christ, and the Lord added riches to Solomon when he only requested wisdom.

Hiram, king of Tyre, a friend of Solomon's, had the contract for the building and shaping the cedar and bringing them down in rafts by sea. He also had the contract for the fancy and cunning work of art in the structure.

King Solomon had 70,000 masons and others working in the stone quarries. Also 100,000 who carried burdens and material. He was a great organizer of labor, having 9,900 overseers of the work and making an astonishingly great stone. Also the costly and hewed stones for the buildings.

It took seven years to complete the house of the Lord and the material was made to fit so perfect that not a hammer was used in connection with the building.

King Solomon's provisions for one day was as follows: Thirty measures of fine flour, sixty measures of meal, ten fat oxen, twenty oxen from pasture and 100 sheep, besides hares, roebucks, deer and fatted fowl. He had 40,000 stalls of horses for his chariots and 12,000 horsemen.

The plans of the House of the Lord were given by the Lord to Solomon's father, David.

Will those who are interested enough to read First Book of Kings for further particulars, be good enough to read what Solomon said at the dedication of the temple, being in chapter viii verses 12-22. No finer sentiments have ever been uttered on the dedication of a building of any kind.

Let us hope that a Solomon will arise in our midst.

WATER DIVINING

To the Editor:—I have read with great interest "Alexander's" scientific explanation as to why the "water diviner's" rod moves downwards, and also his last paragraph which obviously is intended to imply to the reader that water divining is "bunk" and professional water diviners, impostors on a credulous public. I have no quarrel with the "law of resultant of forces" when applied to a forked stick in the hands of any individual, but when "Alexander" (I do not know why he is afraid to disclose his name and address) tries to apply it to a genuine water diviner, who has a gift for water finding, then I beg most emphatically to differ for gift it most certainly is possessed by a few people to a greater or lesser degree in that they react to the presence of water, gold and silver, as shown by the behavior of the rod they hold. No satisfactory explanation, as far as I know, has yet been advanced that can apply to all these individuals, as to why or what causes this reaction, as it affects many of them differently. Some twenty years ago when in Devonshire (I am Cornish on my mother's side), I was shown that I possessed this gift and have used it successfully on several occasions in a professional capacity when other employment was slack. I naturally have been very interested in every book and pamphlet I could obtain locally on divining, and have also sent for books on the subject from England. It is indeed refreshing to have such a confident and simple explanation of a problem that has puzzled eminent scientists, such men as Professor Mulcaster, F.R.S. (with his corpuscular theory), and Professor W. F. Barrett, F.R.S., who has devoted so much time and energy in his researches and collections of evidence in support of the method of "divining" or "dowsing" as given in his lecture on the divining rod, in the Albert Hall, London, England, and set down in past thirty-two, July, 1927, volume thirteen of the Proceedings of the Society of Psychical Research. This problem has also been the cause of numerous books and pamphlets which have been written in English, French and German on the subject of divining, and practically all (the English ones in any case) seem to advance different theories, but the majority agree that only certain individuals can do it.

GIVES RED CROSS MEDAL TO NURSE

International Honor For Nurse Vivian Tremaine; Nursed King

Canadian Press

Montreal, July 3.—A total of 19,000 children and 15,000 women were cared for, cheered up, and sent on their way rejoicing by Miss Vivian Tremaine of Quebec during one year while working in the Red Cross nurseries of the ports of Quebec, Halifax and St. John. Miss Tremaine has been awarded the Florence Nightingale Medal of the International Red Cross committee of Geneva. Only two other Canadian women have received this high honor.

A graduate of the Montreal General Hospital, she has a splendid war record behind her present peace-time job of nurse-in-charge of the Quebec and St. John nurseries.

In 1915 she was in charge of the clearing station at Alesbury, and that year had the honor of being chosen to nurse King George when he had a bad accident, his horse having reared up and fallen on him. She accompanied the King to England, and was on night duty at Buckingham Palace for several weeks.

WAS I.O.D.E. MATRON

In 1916 she was matron at the I.O.D.E. hospital for officers in Hyde Park Place, London, Eng., and then at Buxton in the Granville Special, a hospital of 1,000 beds.

She has the Mons Victory and General Service Medals, the Royal Red Cross first-class and fifth-class rank of the Victorian Order.

When the Department of Immigration requested the Red Cross Society to take over the care of the war veterans, which had been begun as a war measure by voluntary workers of the I.O.D.E., Miss Tremaine received her present appointment.

DUTIES VARIOUS

The duties of the staff of the nurseries are varied. All sorts of emergencies have to be met. Women with children bound for the west arrive expecting money to be awaiting them that does not appear. Food must be bought and the family financed. Sometimes a new baby arrives just before the ship lands—a layette has to be provided and the mother visited in hospital.

While the everyday jobs of assisting with ticket-buying and checking baggage are going on, the children are kept amused with toys, sitting in miniature chairs at miniature tables or else sleeping in the immaculate white cots that surround the nursery.

One of the most valuable "helps" women receive are follow-up post cards, on which they write their addresses, and through sending them to the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto the women are put in touch with public health officers in the district to which they are going. Women with young children are all given "A Canadian Mother's Book."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

TEETHING NOT A MYSTERIOUS PROCESS, JUST A NUTRITIVE ONE

Teething, a process as natural to the child as growing tall, getting fat, or sprouting hair, is hedged about by some really ridiculous notions. Because teething is to most mothers a deep and dark mystery, they are all the more ready to believe and carry over what they are told about it.

One of the amusing ideas which crops up every so often is that "early" teeth are better to be weak. On the face of it this is most illogical. It is the undernourished child whose teething is delayed, and obviously the well-fed baby could build up good teeth and strong bones in advance of the average. Why should "early" teeth be weak? The opposite statement would be more nearly in accord with actual facts.

NORMAL TEETHING PERIOD

There is a wide range in what is called the normal teething period. Teeth buds are in the gums throughout the largest part of the pre-natal period. Usually they begin to erupt from the fifth to the eighth months.

Teeth appear earlier than that, there is no cause for concern but the diet should be corrected if they appear much later than the eighth month.

My leaflet, "Average Ages at Which First and Second Teeth Appear," will help the mother decide whether her own baby's teeth are within this normal age range. A self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompany each request for this leaflet.

Another of those ever-green notions about teething is that if the baby has no teeth at the proper time, his mother should keep on nursing him until the teeth appear. If the nursing baby fails to teethe at the proper age, then diet, and diet alone, is responsible for it.

To continue the same diet that has already proved itself faulty is like ramming one's head against a stone wall in the hope that some day the wall may give way.

Clearly the child has a better diet, and between eight months and one year, the better diet must come from some other source besides the mother.

DIET IMPORTANT

Mothers should save themselves worry and discouragement if they deafened their ears to what they hear and obtained their information from authoritative sources. There is no mystery at all. Teeth grow for the same reasons that affect all other physical members of the body, because they are receiving from the diet those elements which admit of perfect development.

The diet supplies the body with those materials from which its component parts are built. Delayed teething or crumbly teeth must be traced to inadequate nourishment, or to a devastating illness of mother or child as contribute to this deficiency.

Gray Line Employees Hold Outing at New Hamsterley Malahat

Last evening at the delightful tea-rooms at Hamsterley Malahat, through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buller, the annual outing of the employees and friends of the Gray Line Motor Tours was held.

The party left the city in one of the company's large buses and journeyed to the top of the mountain, where they were received by the hostess, Mrs. Buller.

The evening was spent in dancing in the newly constructed dance hall, after which the party retired to the spacious tea-rooms overlooking the Saanich peninsula. A bright moon over the water made a picturesque sight.

After the very enjoyable party was over the guests extended thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Buller for the most delightful time.

Max Schmeling and Young Stribling Will Battle To-night

THE SPORIS MIRROR

World Heavyweight Boxing Title at Stake at Cleveland To-night

Promises To Be Best Fight Since Dempsey Knocked Out Firpo

Schmeling Enters the Ring on the Short End of Betting

Stribling Is Clever, a Great Boxer and Boasts a Damaging Punch

TO-NIGHT at Cleveland, Ohio, at about 7 o'clock, Victoria time, Max Schmeling, the staid and sober German holder of the world heavyweight boxing championship, will step into the ring to defend his title, for the first time since he won it in his battle with Jack Sharkey at New York last summer, against Young Stribling, a prizefighter from Georgia.

Schmeling enters the ring on the short end of the odds, but just the same there are hundreds who have laid their wagers, who they big or little, on the Teuton.

There is every reason to believe that this will be the best heavyweight title fight since Dempsey and Firpo fought at the Polo Grounds in New York City. Youth, courage and ambition are elements that cannot be overlooked. In many of the big title battles, a young and perfectly conditioned challenger has met a faded and weary title defender. Here are two youngsters who have shown their class.

Schmeling, with a background of only a score or so of fights in Europe, came to the United States and easily climbed to the top. He beat a good rugged young heavyweight who had shown plenty of promise. He beat a fast and clever light-heavyweight. That started him and he was matched with Johnny Risko, considered a sure winner. Risko had fought them all and had whipped most of them. Max knocked him down and nearly won in the first round. Risko was saved by the bell. Then Max fought coolly, ending Risko to a draw. He met Risko's rubbers with heavy smashes that dropped the boxer, boy again and again, and ended the bout in the ninth.

That made Schmeling's reputation as a fighter. He was next matched with Paulino. Against the Standard Schmeling fought the fight of a master. He crouched low, let Paulino's swings graze his ears, punched Paulino until he was bewildered, and in the twelfth round stood up straight and tore him to pieces. It was Paulino's amazing feat of ten to eight that he was able to survive the fight through to the end of the fifteenth round.

After that Schmeling fought Sharkey. Up to his moment, Schmeling, apparently unweakened and unhurt, started with a rush. He drove Sharkey back, kept him back, when Sharkey, driven off balance, swung the low punch that lost the fight. Schmeling won on a foul and the world's best heavyweight was the last of a series of eliminations. The various boxing federations of the world recognized the German's right to the title.

Schmeling's refusal to be driven into a return match with the man who fouled him a year ago, was far enough. He offered to fight the winner of a Stribling-Sharkey fight, but that offer was refused. To-night he is fighting Stribling.

Stribling, winner of more than 100 fights by knockout, is the most powerful weight in the United States. There's little doubt about it. While others have been stalling, he has taken on the tough ones and either knocked them out or beaten them by the referee's decision. He knocked out Von Forni, a heavy valloper, who was shunned by the rest of the ring and knocked out Scott. He fought Camera twice. He beat others, keeping himself in fighting trim, while Sharkey, the rival claimant for a title fight, loafed.

Stribling is clever, a great boxer. He is strong and he has a punch. He has speed and he has the ability to carry the fight to Schmeling to-night. If he does, it should be a fight well worth seeing. It may go down into ring history among the sensational battles.

RESUME PLAY AT KINGSTON STREET

Georgian Remains At a 7 to 5 Favorite To Win World Title

Majority of Experts Pick U.S. Challenger To Defeat Powerful German in Their Fifteen-round Bout at Cleveland Stadium; Attendance Is Estimated at Around 50,000; Madison Square Garden Stands to Lose on Battle; Fans Pray for Rain or Breeze to Alleviate Heat.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 3.—Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, will defend his title to-night against the challenge of Young Stribling, with the prospect of an attendance of 40,000 to 50,000 with receipts of $300,000 to $400,000.

The powerful German lad will battle Stribling fifteen rounds or less for the title in Cleveland's $3,000,000 stadium. It will be the German's first defence of his crown since he won it on a foul from Jack Sharkey a year ago.

Stribling, the challenger, remained a 3 to 2 and 7 to 5 favorite to win the title, with very little betting on the result of the battle, chiefly because there was very little Schmeling money in sight.

Conservative predictions were that not more than 40,000 spectators would be present, with receipts at $300,000, a new low record for a heavyweight battle since Tex Rickard began, the era of $1,000,000 gates.

On the basis of a $300,000 gate, the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio, promoting the bout, may face a loss of at its best, realize only a slight profit.

Both Schmeling and Stribling will step into the ring as well-matched physically as any two heavyweights who ever fought. There will be less than three pounds between them in weight. They will have practically the same reach and the same height.

Both finished their training strong and in perfect condition. Schmeling will depend upon two things for victory—an aggressive attack and a jarring right hand, a punch that is damaging when it lands. The German has trained himself to fight the only way he knows—to crowd in and punch at close range.

Stribling possesses greater speed and superior boxing skill than the German, far greater experience in ring craft and cunning. Stribling has to prove that he can come through with the pressure of a championship at stake.

While the fighters were resting in quiet retreats to-day, prayers went up from the fight fans for a cooling breeze to blow in from the west, from the terrific heat that has baked and parched Cleveland. The battle will be held as scheduled unless there is a terrific downpour forcing a postponement until to-morrow night.

Four huge blower fans were arranged above the ring to sweep out the humidity of the June bugs, large winged insects that annually invade this section of the country in dense swarms. These insects are troublesome, but before blower fans they surrender and fade away.

All the notables of fistiana will be at the ringside including Gene Tunney, J. J. Jeffries, Jim Corbett and the rest.

ANDERSON TO MEET ARTHUR

Classy Middleweight Wrestlers in Finish Bout Here Saturday; Brooks Matched

Two of the finest middleweight wrestlers to ever show here, Des Anderson and Ernie Arthur, will meet in a finish bout at the Tillamook gymnasium on Saturday evening. Both boys are in fine condition and a great bout is expected. In their last meeting here Arthur was the winner, but only after a great match.

In the five-round semi-windup "Rocky" Brooks will tangle with "Rough-house" Mason, Seattle. The latter is reported to be plenty tough, and one of the type who likes to round things in the ring. Brooks showed his best form in months to defeat Jack O'Dell last Saturday.

First bout will commence at 8.45 o'clock.

New York, July 3.—Jim McMillen, 216, Chicago, and Herbie Freeman, 218, New York, wrestled to a draw in their match at the New York Coliseum yesterday evening. The match was to have been a finish, but was halted at 11 o'clock under the law forbidding wrestling shows to progress beyond that hour.

Dick Shikat, Philadelphia, 218, threw Steven Severs, 218, in 28.34 with a screeching whirr.

Calgary, Alta., July 3.—In the presence of a capacity crowd, approximately 3,500 enthusiasts, John Preberg, Chicago, with a weight advantage of about 15 pounds, defeated Bob Kruse, Portland, in a rough and tumble feature wrestling match here yesterday evening. Kruse won the first fall and Preberg the best two. It was a thrilling encounter that kept the big crowd on edge throughout.

In the semi-windup Jack Taylor successfully defeated the British Empire title holder, taking a fall from Moore Norbeck. Steve Solstice, Calgary, beat Mike Blunkin in the preliminary, tossing the Winnipegger in five minutes.

DATTO BEATEN

St. Louis, July 3.—Davey Abad, St. Louis, decisively outpointed Johnny Datto, Filipino from Cleveland, in the four-round feature of a boxing programme here last night. Abad weighed 120; Datto, 125.

PRINCIPALS IN TO-NIGHT'S HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE BOUT

Sonnenberg Doesn't Need His Tackle To Win Over Getzenoff

Former World Heavyweight Wrestling Champion Pins Giant Russian at Vancouver in Third and Fourth Rounds With "Flying Winglock" and Headlocks; Jack McLaughlin and Young Hackenschmidt wrestle to Draw in Spectacular Bout; Kaplan Defeats Westenberg.

Vancouver, July 3.—Bereft of his most effective weapon, the flying tackle, Gus Sonnenberg, former wrestling champion of the world, still had more than enough on the ball to strike out the giant Russian, Count Michael Getzenoff, in the feature event of the programme at the Arena yesterday evening. Sonnenberg ended the match in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-round battle.

Except for one brief moment, while reeling groggily from the effects of a terrific headlock, Sonnenberg made no threats of attempting to use his famous flying tackle. Just once, in the first round, he lowered his bullet head and charged the Russian. Bill Draper sprang between them and reminded Gus of the ban put on the tackle by the Vancouver Boxing and Wrestling Commission, and from that time on Sonnenberg wrestled in the good old fashioned way, breaking cleanly and matching the huge Russian in strength.

Sonnenberg's weight was given as 203 pounds and that of Getzenoff as 213 pounds.

Gus fattened the count in the third round with a "flying winglock," which looked like an armlock, in 3 1/2 minutes. Michael landed with stunning force on the back of his head and did not offer any serious resistance when Gus pressed his shoulders to the mat.

CHURCHMEN TO PLAY AURORAS

Five C's to Meet Vancouver Team in Last Match of Tour of Island To-morrow

Victoria C.C. to Meet Cowichan at Duncan; Wanderers to Play Inco's

In a final effort to snatch a victory from the Vancouver Auroras, touring mainland team which has defeated five Up-Island eleven's during its series, the Five C's will send a strong eleven to Beacon Hill Park to-morrow, it was announced by Percy Payne, head of the squad, to-day. The Auroras, league leaders in the Terminal City, have made a clean sweep of their tour so far, but are promised plenty of opposition in the final game which will start at 2 o'clock.

Against Cumberland, Comox, Courtenay, Nanaimo and Duncan, the visitors have scored victories, but according to local predictions they will have to show an exceptionally high brand of cricket if they hope to clinch their final encounter.

LOCAL TEAM

The churchmen's team for the fixture will include C. F. Conley, G. Galt, Eric Quinlan, H. Edwards, A. Les, A. Atwell, P. C. Payne, A. Booth, G. Payne, R. Edwards and A. Wilkinson. Weaver and Malone will be umpires and Jesse Longfield scorer.

Refreshments will be served to visitors.

In the regular scheduled matches, Victoria Cricket Club will journey to Duncan to meet Cowichan, while Wanderers will play the Inco's at Work Point. Both fixtures promise to be interesting.

WILLIAMS MAY RUN HERE IN JULY 20 MEET

Vancouver Track Men Asking For Island Competition For Olympic Winner

Celebration Committee Will Invite Champion and Other Vancouverites

Percy Williams may run in the Diamond Jubilee track meet at the Willows on July 20. This morning a letter was received from Percy Williams of Vancouver asking for island competition for the Canadian Olympic hero.

Percy is busy getting into shape for the big international track meet to be held in the Terminal City next month and needs outside races to bring out his best.

In the letter received by Archie McKinnon, physical director and coach at the Y.M.C.A., Stewart wrote as follows:

"We are looking for competition for Percy Williams for the month of July and the first week in August. Are there any meets on the island that you know of taking place around that time?"

"I would appreciate hearing from you as soon as possible."

SHOULD WILLIAMS ENTER

Mr. McKinnon will take the matter up with the committee in charge of the track meet to be held at the Willows on July 20. As chairman of the committee, he felt his group would welcome the entry of Williams and stated he had spoken of the meet to other B.C. track and field men while in Vancouver for the Olympic games.

He also hopes to see Fred Martello, honors winner of the aggregate point honors at the 1930 Highlanders events over, as well as Dunc McNaughton, who represented Canada in the high jump in the British Empire games at Hamilton last year.

A considerable squad of Vancouver "y" boys may also make the trip.

Since Percy's defeat at the hands of Frankie Wyckoff and Emmett Topino in Los Angeles last month, the Vancouver Mercury has been intensifying his training. At the Caledonia games, he ran the century in nine and four-fifths seconds. To beat the picked first he will be up against in the international meet he will have to shave down this mark and hopes to do it with more competitive running.

His visit here would add to the drawing card of the local meet. Some years ago he ran in an exhibition relay with the University of British Columbia team, and again on the ice at the Arena.

The other members of the team are Betty Nuthall, Dorothy Round, Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittinghall and Miss Phyllis Maudford.

"TENT CITIES" FOR FANS AT RENO FRACAS

Thousands Pour Into Famous Divorce Centre For Baer-Paulino Bout To-morrow

Paulino Favored to Win 20-Round Joust; Battle Brings Back Memories

Reno, Nev., July 3.—Paulino Ugudun, battle-browed Basque, and Max Baer, rangy Californian, heavyweight principals in Reno's biggest fight in twenty-one years, took things easy to-day, while up and down the streets of America's most famed divorce centre trudged the largest crowd this city has accommodated since another July 4—In 1910.

Twenty-one years ago to-morrow, Jim Jeffries failed in his attempt to snatch the heavyweight crown back from Jack Johnson. Reno then was overflowing with all the notables of the sporting world and the championship battle attracted sufficient customers to account for a gate of $270,000.

John L. Sullivan, the old Boston "Strong Boy" was there. First of United States champions, he had long since said good-bye to the battle pit, but he sat in a ring-side seat. Not far away from him sat James J. Corbett, his conqueror. And in the ring above them was Jeffries, come out of retirement because of general clamor to try to win back the title.

All the boxing world knows of the outcome of that fight of yesterday, but Reno was the gathering place of the luminaries for a day while the city was jammed with milling throngs.

JOKERS DEFEAT SAILORS' TEAM

Fred Gibbons' Goal Gives Local Eleven 1 to 0 Victory in Benefit Soccer

In a benefit game for Len Stoffer, who was injured playing against Victoria Wests some time ago, the Jokers scored a 1 to 0 victory over the team from H.M.S. Dryad at Beacon Hill Park yesterday evening.

Fred Gibbons' smashing shot early in the second half accounted for the win.

Although they were without two of their regulars, the Dragon representatives virtually held the smart local squad even until Gibbons got home his counter.

Officials of the Jokers club wish to thank all those who assisted in staging the game, especially Referee McMillan and Linesman Hunter, who gave their services free. The public turned out in full force and a good sum was received for the injured player.

Bob Pearce Reaches Final of Diamond Sculls At Henley

Canadian Pulls To Easy Victory Over L. Southwood To-day

Giant Sculler From Hamilton, Ont., Will Meet F. Bradley, Cambridge, To-morrow in Deciding Race for Historic Honors; Bradley Defeats L. Clive, Oxford, In Semi-finals; Pearce Uses Terrific Power To Defeat Southwood, a More Polished Oarsman; Fine Weather Brings Out Large Crowd.

Henley-on-Thames, Eng., July 3.—Bob Pearce, Canada, successfully passed his third test in the Diamond Sculls this afternoon and to-morrow will enter the final with F. Bradley of Pembroke College, Cambridge.

Pearce to-day easily defeated L. F. Southwood of the Thames Rowing Club, racing over the Henley course of a mile and 550 yards in nine minutes and eleven seconds.

This time was twenty-six seconds faster than Bradley's time, defeating L. Clive of Oxford in the other semi-final to-day.

Southwood, who had been impressive in his two previous diamond sculls victories this week, was no match for the giant Canadian sculler, who holds the Olympic and British Empire singles championships. Pearce burst away from the start at thirty-two strokes to the minute and by Temple Island had a length lead over Southwood, who was sculling in beautiful style. Bob gradually increased his lead to a great margin as he forged along at twenty-eight strokes to the minute, while Southwood, more polished oarsman but less powerful, plugged along. The latter part of the race was a procession and Pearce, still keeping a steady twenty-eight-stroke beat, finished fourteen seconds in front of his opponent.

IMPRESSIVE STYLE
Bradley showed impressive form to eliminate Clive in his semi-final, which was a unique intervarsity contest. Bradley spurred into a lead from the start and at the half mile the race became a procession, and Bradley was able to paddle to the finish at a comfortable pace four lengths ahead. Yesterday's chill wind and lowering skies gave way to-day to sunshine and light breezes, and a great crowd turned out for "semi-final" day. The beautiful Henley reach of the Thames was crowded with rivercraft right to the booms marking the historic course, and thousands of gaily-dressed visitors lined the banks.

The London Rowing Club's senior eight defeated the crack Berliner Ruder crew, Germany, by a third of a length in the semi-final of the grand challenge cup, senior event for eights.

The race was the feature of the day, racing on to-day's great semi-final programme. The big London eight, however, had the advantage, covering the course in the fairly fast time of 7 minutes and 30 seconds to qualify for to-morrow's final.

EASY VICTORY
Magdalen College, Cambridge, defeated Lensbury in a heat of the Thames Cup, junior eights event, by a length in 7:40 after an easy race in which they were never really tested.

Jesus College defeated First Trinity by a length in 8:53, in a semi-final of the ladies challenge plate for eight-oared crews. The race was well rowed and exciting. Jesus College, grimly hanging on to the lead they had established at the half-mile post.

In a semi-final of the visitor's challenge cup for fours, Pembroke College defeated University College by a length and a half after an easy race. The time was 8:25. Pembroke led all the way.

Third Trinity defeated New College by a short length in the other semi-final of the visitor's challenge cup for fours, in 8:41. Third Trinity held that much advance from Temple Island to the finish despite all New College's desperate efforts.

Thaird Trinity defeated New College by a short length in the other semi-final of the visitor's challenge cup for fours, in 8:41. Third Trinity held that much advance from Temple Island to the finish despite all New College's desperate efforts.

Crack Portland Tennis Player Will Enter City Clay Court Championship

Tournament Opens on Kingston St. Courts July 11; Entries Close July 9

With the opening of the Victoria clay court championships carded for Saturday, July 11, at the courts of the Kingston Street Club, local players will make their first attack on the season's open tournaments. Together with the announcement of this tournament, comes word from Portland that Irving Weinstein, last year's single champion, will come north to defend his laurels. Weinstein gave a wonderful display of tennis last year, and throughout the entire tournament was not forced to extend himself to the limit. Local tennis enthusiasts will welcome the news of the reappearance here of this player, as his style and play were worth watching.

The other divisions are expected to draw large entry lists with players from every city club and many of the up-and-coming mainline clubs. Last year this tournament was an outstanding success.

ENTRIES CLOSE JULY 9
Entries may be made on cards provided at the different local clubs or may be sent to Tommy Forbes, Victoria Sports Goods Co., before 6 o'clock on July 9.

Events and last year's champions follow:
Men's singles—Irrving Weinstein, Portland, Ore.
Women's singles—Mona Miller, Victoria.
Men's doubles—E. E. McCallum and Marsh Gordon, Victoria.
Women's doubles—Mary Campbell and Helen Talow, Victoria.
Mixed doubles—Mary Campbell and Ross Hocking, Victoria.

ELKS TO PLAY TACOMA NINE
Local League Leaders Oppose Schaffer Box Company in Twin Bill To-morrow

Two exhibition ball games will be played to-morrow at the Royal Athletic Park with the Elks opposing the Schaffer Box Company team, all-city champions of Tacoma, in the twin bill. The first game will get under way at 7:30 o'clock, with the evening fixture starting at 8:15.

In the afternoon battle Jack Noble will take the mound for the local league leaders, while "Doc" Webster will handle the pitching duties in the second game.

George Phipps, star moundman in the Schaffer Box Company's camp, is expected to get the mound duty assignment in the matinee encounter, with Wright hurling in the nightcap. Phipps, it will be remembered, hurled the Tacoma Kittens to victory here about three weeks ago.

Victoria fans have seen the Kittens in action three times and know they are to be a snappy ball club. The Schaffer Box Company is capable of playing the same kind of ball.

THE JUMPING JACKS OF THE BOXING RING
Did you ever stop to wonder why boxers, when they first step into a strange ring step out to the centre and dance around a bit, and when they return to their corners seize the ropes and alternately squat and come up on their toes? Most people think that it is to cover up nervousness.

James J. Corbett, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, once said he was the originator of the mid-rings dance idea. He says that when he stepped into the ring at New Orleans, September 7, 1891, he was so nervous that he stepped out from under his crown, he noticed that the ring was on turf instead of the boards he had been used to in training and fighting. Curious to see how his shoes would hold on the turf, he stepped out to the centre of the ring and danced about. Boxers are notorious for copying the manner of champions.

The idea became a fad but it was a useful aid for it gave boxers an accurate idea of the springiness or solidity of the platform upon which the contest was to be fought.

The squinting and springing in the corner is another mannerism which has been copied from old-time fighters.

The idea in the last case is to limber up the leg muscles. Some boxers follow this squinting exercise up with shoulder and arm exercises to loosen up the muscles of the upper body. Seconds of nervous boxers frequently cluster around their man before the first gone rings so that he cannot even see his opponent.

Frank Hogan's Home Run With Two Aboard Gives Gotham Club 3 to 2 Victory Over St. Louis Yesterday; Chicago Hold Place Behind Giants With Win Over Phillies in Eleven Innings; Athletics Take 12 to 4 Shellacking From Cleveland; Yankees and Washington Both Win.

At home or away, inter-sectional games in the American League seem to bring about the same results for all the clubs except the St. Louis Browns. A complete round of games with the eastern clubs of the circuit playing in the west which wound up yesterday, brought just one big change in the standing.

The Browns, who started their campaign at Sportsman Park against the eastern invaders in last place, finished it yesterday a good fifth in the standing while the Chicago White Sox dropped from fifth to eighth in the same time. St. Louis won thirteen games and lost five, while the White Sox had only five victories to twelve defeats.

The rest of the standings remained about the same with the eastern clubs pulling slowly ahead. The four eastern clubs pulled out a slight margin of victories, winning thirty-four games and losing thirty-two. Boston alone fared badly among the invaders, recording only seven victories against nine defeats. Cleveland reversed those figures to become a second western club which got better than an even break.

OTHER PEOPLE'S VIEWS

Individuals possess the gift, and all give many instances to prove the efficiency of the diviner and his rod, which incidentally is more often of hazel or willow than of willow or paper as suggested. Now according to "Alexander," the so-called diviner when he reaches a likely looking spot, selected presumably by the presence of maple, willow or cedar trees, proceeds to pull the ends of his divining rod at forty-five degrees and causes it to point downwards when and where he wishes, and a well is dug at that spot. This simple method is especially easy when the ground under examination happens to be a clear field or open space devoid of trees, as is frequently the case. I recently read a book from England entitled "Springs of Water and How to Discover Them by the Divining Rod," written by a celebrated Old Country water diver, Mr. B. Thompson, (author of "The Theory of Water Finding") published by Hurns and Blackett, London, England. Mr. Thompson, besides writing a very interesting account of his experiences as a water finder, gives a list of patrons for whom he has successfully found water. His list starts with forty-titled individuals, among which were such well-known names as the Dukes of Marlborough, Portland, Beaufort, Grafton, etc., also Lord Methuen, Fisher and Brasse, etc., people who would not for a moment allow their names to appear in print in support of a fraudulent claim. The list includes 235 names on whose estates water has been successfully obtained, also the names of twenty-one estate agents, twenty-two country towns, rural districts and parish councils (two of which are in South Africa); ten architects and surveyors, six land companies and landladies (two in South Africa), ten clergymen, six solicitors (including Sir Vincent Calliard Bart.), seventeen engineering firms, eighteen manufacturers (including Messrs. Peck, Frean and Co.), twelve dairies, eleven breweries (including Charrington's, Burton on Trent), four railway companies (including the London North Western and Great Central Railways), four waterworks companies, Yorkshire, Westbury, Pontypool and Poole, Dorset, and last but not least, Oxford, Worcester, Balliol and Oriel Colleges at Oxford, and Gonville, Cains, Magdalen and St. John's Colleges at Cambridge. In view of "Alexander's" easy detection of the fraudulent methods of water diviners, it is indeed surprising that some of the learned authorities of the above-named colleges did not realize that Mr. Thompson was just exploiting the "law of resultant of forces" and was just guessing or trusting to luck that he struck water. (I presume authorities were qualified and had passed their high school matriculation or its equivalent.)

Mr. Wrigglesworth, of local fame as a water diver, in his recent interview with your reporter, pointed out that Miss Penrose (who has, I believe, come from Cornwall, England) is at present employed by the Provincial Government locating water for farmers in the Okanagan and Peace River districts, was not unique in her "gift" as a water finder, but that he and also others already in British Columbia, possessed the same "gift." Mr. Wrigglesworth also claimed to have successfully located 1,000 wells in and around the local district, and I have no doubt whatever that, like myself, he has letters of commendation proving his claim. These, together with the list of Mr. Thompson's patrons, should help to make "Alexander" realize that perhaps there is more than the "law of resultant of forces" concerned in the operations of the genuine diviner, and that the results which are what count which the diviner obtains are not "pure luck," or shall we say, a series of fortunate coincidences.

COMING TO DOMINION

Years ago, "Daddy Long Legs," as a stage play, became the favorite of many lovers of the drama, among them Janet Gaynor, then a child. It was this play that first set the delightful star thinking of a histrionic career. When the screen version of this romantic comedy opens at the Dominion Theatre to-morrow for a week's run, Miss Gaynor will be seen in the same role that thrilled her as a child. Co-starred with the popular screen favorite is Warner Baxter.

STAY YOUNG-
with Eno

WOMEN, as well as men, are as young as they feel. Years don't matter, it's a question of health—the health that comes from keeping inwardly clean.

Give Nature a chance to keep you youthful.

Listlessness—headaches—acid stomach are warnings of Nature's rebellion against constipation—it may be unsuspected because incomplete elimination is rarely recognized.

Start and finish the day with a dash of ENO in a glass of water for just a few days and see how quickly you begin to feel "at your best."

Get ENO at your druggist's... accept no substitute because—

DAILY HEALTH SERVICE

Erysipelas, Deadly Skin Germ, Gains Foothold Through Cuts

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Erysipelas has been known to mankind for some thousands of years, but it was recognized as a contagious condition only in 1800. It usually manifests itself as an acute inflammation of the skin, but because of its severity its effects are felt throughout the whole body.

The beginning of erysipelas may be a wound or abrasion of the skin so small that it cannot be seen with the naked eye. Into this wound the germs enter, the causative organism being a form of the streptococcus organism of the same family that causes scarlet fever, heart disease, septic sore throat and innumerable other complaints. If it were not for the resistance that people usually have in their bodies, erysipelas would be much more frequent than it really is. The manner in which erysipelas affects the body generally is to set up a severe fever with a chill and, associated with this, all of the symptoms of an acute intoxication or poisoning of the blood, such as a headache, loss of appetite, vomiting, and even delirium.

Erysipelas starts most commonly on the face around the nose and eyes, but other places in which it appears are not infrequently around ulcers of the leg and in connection with surgical wounds. The condition is such a virulent inflammation that it has been called St. Anthony's fire. Because of the speed with which erysipelas spreads from the nose over the cheeks its appearance on the face is called a butterfly appearance. Most frequently the inflammation stops at some natural boundary, such as the hair line of the scalp, the nape of the neck, or wherever the skin happens to be tightly bound down to the underlying structures. Thus erysipelas rarely passes down over the chin on to the front of the neck. When a person has once had erysipelas, he is likely to have repeated infections exactly as in the case of multiple boils.

Any competent doctor is familiar with the symptoms of erysipelas and makes a diagnosis at a glance. It is important to realize that it is one of the most dangerous diseases that can attack a human being, the number of deaths varying from 4 to 9 per cent in general, and averaging about 1 per cent in young people. If the germs are found in the blood, the patient usually dies.

Numerous remedies have been developed for treatment, including all sorts of antiseptics, and antitoxins. The frequent use of cold or hot cloths helps alleviate pain and take down swelling. If the erysipelas is involved it is customary to drop some mild antiseptic solution into the eyes. Such patients should, of course, be put to bed and kept in bed until the temperature has been normal for several days. The most recent remedy is an antitoxin made by injecting a horse with an organism which has been found to be associated with the disease. The serum from such a horse is an anti-erysipelas serum.

Gordon Head Farm

A nice little property of two acres with attractive sea view. The home is only five years old; comprising living-room, dining-room, kitchen and four bedrooms; fifty ornamental trees, one-quarter acre of logans, apples, plums, cow barn and hen-house.

HIGH FAIRFIELD

Close to the school, an excellent eight-room house situated on a pretty corner lot in a high-class residential district. One that we can highly recommend as a real bargain. $3,700. $2,000 cash, remainder at seven per cent.

CENSUS WILL AID BUSINESS

Will Provide Merchants With Valuable Information, Says Report

Will Not Reveal Operations of Individual Firms; Possible For Comparisons

Data which will help to solve some of the current distribution problems of Canadian merchants will be secured through the census of merchandising and service establishments which is being taken in connection with the decennial census of population. The Chamber of Commerce is advised in a report from Ottawa setting out the reasons for taking the census.

Business men, including wholesale and retail merchants, want more information about the internal trade of the Dominion, the report points out. The census will furnish retailers who are in the "yard stick" by which they can compare their own business with the total business of merchants of the same kind in their own and other localities. They will be able to compare their own business with average conditions in such important matters as sales, employees, stocks on hand, wages, cash and credit sales, etc. They will be able to compare chain store and independent store operations, and will supply them with more information about retail outlets and market possibilities than anything now available.

The data gathered will be of great assistance to manufacturers in planning sales campaigns. The government does not reveal the operations of individual firms, it is pointed out.

Under the law no one but employees of the bureau sworn to keep secret the results of the census. The census will be permitted to examine the individual reports of merchants, and no business can be used by the bureau to any government department or to any firm or individual which would disclose in any way the figures supplied by the census.

Figures supplied will not be used as a basis for taxation. Preliminary reports will be available to the public in the form of general figures sent in their complete returns. These reports will be sent free of charge to all who ask for them.

W. M. Archibald, manager of mines with the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, is registered at the Empress while he interviewed J. D. Galloway, provincial minister of mines.

He was unable to see Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, or Robert Dunn, Deputy Minister, who are out of the city to-day.

Mr. Archibald, who has quite a reputation for himself several years ago when he started flying in order to keep in closer touch with the outlying properties coming under his jurisdiction, is a licensed aviator and pilot of his own plane. Other officials of the Consolidated have since followed his flying example.

The spectacular coach bearing Queen Margaret and her maids of honor attracted much attention, as also did a Japanese tea garden entered by the Young People's Association of the United Church.

Indians in native western costume and war paint added color, while the tolling of bells and the playing of music to the parade. The ceremony of crowning took place when Miss Lillian Nicholas, 1930 queen, placed the crown on the head of Margaret, Queen Carter, nine-year-old 1931 queen, who made a graceful little speech. Harry Carter, president of the Athletic Association, T. H. Patterson and Mayor Motion addressed the gathering on the significance of the celebration.

A fireman's competition was the preliminary event in which Cumberland, Courtenay, Duncan, Ladysmith and Alberni were competitors. In the drill test of joining five lengths of hose and securing water in shortest time Alberni won, with time of seventeen and three-eighths seconds. Courtenay came second with time of eighteen and three-eighths seconds. Alberni's time was two fifths of a second more than the record held by the Pacific Coast winners.

In the second event of six lengths of hose replacing third length, Courtenay came first with record of forty seconds; Ladysmith was second with forty-nine and four-fifths seconds; Alberni was disqualified for this event. In the water ball event Courtenay won from Ladysmith. In the challenge from Alberni to Courtenay, Alberni was again the winner. Jack Thompson won the mysterious water ball challenge.

Vernon Stewart, chief of Victoria Fire Brigade, was judge of the sports. Prizes secured for floats, etc., were as follows: Best decorated float, "Japanese Tea Garden," Y.P.A. of United Church; original, "Robin Hood," Miss Brenda Smith; comic, "Toonerville Trolley," Mrs. V. H. Patterson; original, "Forest," school floats, "Maypole," teacher, Miss Brenda Smith; "Sports," second, Open competition, I. Alberni Junior Auxiliary to the West Coast Hospital; 2. Alberni Girl Guides; 3. Alberni Fire Brigade; best decorated car, "Canada," Mrs. W. Eaves; bicycle, Gordon MacArthur; Indians in costume, Alberni Reserve Indians. Base ball between Duncan and Alberni was won by Alberni, 3 to 1.

The new community hall was opened in the evening for a monster dance and was filled to capacity. Visitors from Nanaimo, Victoria and Campbell River were in attendance as well as Central Lake and surrounding towns, and the sum of $500 was cleared at the dance alone. Drawing for prizes took place during the dance, the ticket drawn for $200 being in the name of Eric J. Dunn; $25 by Hector Frost.

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, July 3.—Wheat: Cables were decidedly weak, Liverpool closing ½ to ¾ lower when due higher. The general news was more or less bearish, weather being more favorable over North America, the heat wave having been broken both north and south. As a result local wheat prices opened about ½ cent lower, and made further substantial losses during the session, and the market displayed little or no pop at any time, the only support apparently being some buying against the daily bids. The situation seems to be very discouraging. Buyers of yesterday were unloading and taking losses. Chicago interests were also selling here.
Demand for cash wheat was very slow, and while offerings were light, spreads were ½ to ¾ off. Exporters could only confirm a small lot for export. No change in the flour market. Seaboard reported a disappointing demand for North American wheats with some interest being shown in new crop winters which is being offered at the Gulf at from 1 to 2 cents under Chicago September.
New York reports that private advice has been received to the effect that Russia had sold 1,000,000 bushels of wheat to the United Kingdom at approximately 50 cents per bushel. According to reports from Washington there is a movement afoot to get the farm board to hold their entire surplus supplies off the market until prices reach eighty-five cents at Chicago. Winnipeg futures closed ½ to ¼ lower.

Cunard Line Will Have Anniversary

When the Cunard liner Berengaria sails from England Saturday, she will celebrate the ninety-first anniversary of the sailing of the first Cunard liner for America. It was on July 4, 1840, that the Britannia, the actual pioneer in steam transatlantic transportation, set out from Liverpool for Boston via Halifax. The Britannia, registered 1,154 tons, the Berengaria registers 32,236 tons. Great as is the difference in size it will be much greater when the new 73,000 ton Cunarder, now building on the Clyde, enters the company's service in 1933.

The Cunard Line was organized in 1839 as "The British and North American Steam Packet Company" and was the result of the labor and foresight of the Halifax boy who made his first money by picking and selling donations. With the small amount of money thus obtained, young Samuel Cunard attended auctions, bought fish, potatoes and other commodities at a low cost and sold them later at a substantial profit. He thus laid the foundation of his fortune.

Cunard's father was of German descent. His mother came of Irish stock, her maiden name being Margaret Murphy. His father, a Loyalist, came from Philadelphia, his mother from a humbler Irish stock. His parents emigrated to Halifax in 1783. Samuel Cunard was born there in 1793. At the age of twenty-eight he was married to Susan Duffus, the daughter of a Scot. In the course of time their son, Edward, married a niece of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot. This all goes to prove that the great English steamship company started with an excellent mixture of good blood.

Early in life Samuel Cunard evinced a love for shipping. He was engaged in the business as early as 1813. In 1820 he became a shipbuilder, turning out eight to ten fishing vessels annually. In 1826 he bought an interest in a steamship project started with an excellent mixture of good blood.

Gradually young Cunard took interest in many forms of business, with the result that in 1830 he had amassed a fortune of $800,000 and was the head of a firm operating forty sailing ships.

The first Cunard steamer, the Britannia, sailed from Liverpool on July 4, 1840, for Halifax and Boston. She carried sixty-three passengers and covered the route in fourteen days and eight hours. Cunard himself was a passenger.

The Britannia reached Halifax on the morning of July 21, made a short stay and proceeded to Boston, where she docked on July 27.

Boston gave Cunard a great reception. Two thousand people partook of a dinner in his honor. Daniel Webster was the principal speaker on the occasion.

In the same year the Acadia, sister ship of the Britannia, made the voyage from Liverpool via Halifax to Boston in eleven days and four hours, a record which stood for many years. The Britannia reduced her maiden trip time by several days on all succeeding voyages.

As time went on Cunard liners met spirited competition by building fast ships. In 1856 the Penina made the transatlantic crossing in nine days; ten years later the Scotia's time was eight days; in 1887-8 the Umbria and Etruria cut it to six days; in 1894 the Lucania reduced the time from Ireland to five days, and twenty years ago the Mauretania raced across the Atlantic from Queenstown in less than four and one-half days.

The new Cunarder now building will cover the distance from Southampton via Cherbourg to New York in less than

Around the Docks

This evening will see the arrival here from England of the Furber motor liner Pacific Reliance. She is due at Race Rocks at 7 o'clock and will dock alongside the Bithet pier at 8:30 o'clock. She will probably remain here overnight and proceed to Vancouver to-morrow morning. There are also about 100 tons of general cargo for the port. King Brothers are local agents for the Furber Line.

The sailing date of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia, now in port at Vancouver, has been slightly changed this voyage. She will leave Vancouver at midnight Sunday and will be here first thing Monday morning. After picking up local passengers, light cargo and mails, she will put to sea about 8 o'clock on Tuesday across the north Pacific to Yokohama. The Asia will take out a fair list of passengers this trip.

The ferry steamer Olympic will make an extra trip between Port Angeles and Victoria to-morrow morning to look after the heavy motor travel expected for the July 4 holiday week-end. After she arrives here this evening on her regular trip from Port Angeles she will turn around and go back to the city across the strait and be ready to leave there at 6 o'clock in the morning for Victoria. She will arrive at 7:30 o'clock in time to take her regular sailing to Bellingham at 8 o'clock.

The N.Y.K. liner Shidzuka Maru is expected to approach the west coast of Vancouver Island from ports in China and Japan. She is due here next Wednesday and will make the Ogdan Point pier. For Victoria this voyage the Shidzuka has twenty-six tons of general cargo, four tourist passengers and one third class seven tourists and two third class passengers will proceed to Seattle. For Vancouver the ship has 300 tons of general cargo, including a valuable parcel of raw silk.

The C.P.R. steamer Princess Norah returned to her berth in the inner harbor to-day shortly after noon from a trip to the west coast of Vancouver Island, during which she went to Port Alberni. She carried a good number of round-trip tourists. She will leave Victoria on another trip to the coast on Monday evening. The Princess Charlotte arrived in Vancouver this morning from Alaska and will sail for the coast to-morrow evening. She will take out a large number of people.

The Kingsley Navigation Company's freighter Kingsley is now on her way up the coast to Victoria from San Francisco. King Brothers, local agents, expect her to arrive to-morrow. She will berth at the Ogdan Point piers and discharge cargo while here.

Bound for Victoria and Vancouver from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada arrived at Honolulu this morning. She will sail for Victoria this evening and is scheduled to arrive here next Wednesday morning, although she may speed up and make port Tuesday evening.

The West Coast fishing vessel Ribic is on the ways at the Muriel plant in the inner harbor for repairs to damages suffered when she grounded on the Coast some weeks ago. The Dominion Government lightship tender Berens is at the Point Hope shipyard for general overhaul.

The Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara sailed to-day from Suva for Victoria and Vancouver. After a call at Honolulu she will arrive here July 16 or 17. She is coming from Sydney and Auckland.

Roberta was having her first active misgivings. Surely Jack had conducted the negotiations with the owner of the dilapidated car in an unnecessarily harsh manner. She simply could not imagine her father, or even arrogant Sir George, speaking to those people in the way Jack had spoken, or giving them his name in such a fashion as to make it almost impossible for them to get it correctly. Then his sudden and abrupt way of giving in to all they asked, with a snarl, and dashing away, she had not time to wonder any more, for she caught a glimpse of Sir George as she looked back.

"Jack!" she screamed out, so that he might hear her above the roar of the thunder, the reverberation of their swift progress along the loosely fitted boards of the old bridge, the rain and the, to her, almost audible crash of lightning. "We're being followed," Jack swore.

It was a simply disgusting oath, Roberta told herself. She might be too modern to be shocked at a little profanity, but he simply should not say such things. She would see that he never said that again. But Sir George! What earthly right had he to follow?

Sir George, only too anxious to answer that question, was following as closely behind them as Jack's speed permitted.

The old bridge, one of the few ancient wooden covered bridges left in the province, was a long bridge, crossing the river at its widest. The quaint wagon-bed-like structure had windows at equal distances all the way across. These old covered bridges were delightful places in which to cool off in summer time, with their narrow windows showing every now and then the beautiful river and the equally beautiful shores. In a rain such as to-day's the bridge was a long, dim, dark tunnel, lit by occasional flashes of lightning. The noise of the rain on the wooden roof was terrific. Sir George, with a sinking heart, remembered his small supply of petrol as he increased his speed slightly so that he might not lose sight of Jack. He would save for the last spur and stop Jack at the other side of the bridge just before he reached the highway.

Jack's plan was, of course, directly opposite. He meant to drive beyond the required regulations while he was on the bridge, and when he reached the entrance he intended to go flying at top speed up the hill to the broad highway that led to the New York road.

He had forgotten, what his pursuer suddenly remembered with a relieved sigh, that there was a toll gate and a toll man at the other end of the bridge, and that the car would have to stop while toll was paid.

Sir George, remembering this, relaxed. He could surely stop them at the gate, for Roberta would hardly care to stage a public scene. She might even be glad to come back with him. If she was not, then it was a thing to be settled between Jack and himself. Sir George rather hoped Roberta would not want to come with him at once, so that he might have that excuse to give Jack the beating that he richly deserved.

Then it happened. Suddenly, as it seemed instantly, after a long and terrible peal of thunder came a tremendous blinding flash and a sound as though something had been ripped. A rolling ball of fire flew before his eyes, a queer sulphurous smell filled the air, and immediately, it seemed to him, the bridge between his car and Jack's burst into flames.

Sir George's car, some distance behind Jack's, stopped, then went forward as flame and smoke rolled up. He felt a moment of horror. Roberta! Was Roberta hurt? Forgetting his own peril, for the flames were running along the roof and sides of the bridge and would soon reach him, he called aloud in his terrible anxiety and fear, as he drove forward. He did not realize that he was using the pet name the girl's father had given her and that he secretly thought charmingly of her boyish red-gold hair.

"Bobbie! Bobbie! Are you all right?" He continued to shout as he leaped from his car and ran toward the fire which was now like a flaming screen between them. "Bobbie! Bobbie! Where are you?"

Beyond the smoke and flames, after his first swift collapse against the shaking Jack, Roberta MacBeth lifted her head and listened. The shock had stunned them both and automatically Jack had stopped the car. What she heard made her turn to the flaming part of the bridge just behind them. Jack stretched out his hand to start the car again.

Again that agonized shout. This time it was plain to Roberta and Jack, too. "Bobbie! Bobbie! Wait! I'm coming." "Bobbie! Bobbie! Don't be frightened! Jack has stopped the car. What she heard made her turn to the flaming part of the bridge just behind them. Jack stretched out his hand to start the car again.

forward. The bridge behind them was like a funnel full of flames. It was too much for Jack. He started the car, determined to get out of it at any cost. As for the girl, if she was fool enough to stick by that fellow she could stick, he was not going to wait for her. The wind was blowing the flames toward him now. Half in despair of his carefully laid plans, half out of a desire to justify his action, he gave a loud call.

"Come on, Roberta!"

There was no reply, but as the car started it was suddenly checked. Jack had forgotten that his enemy was six feet three, but Sir George had not. As he saw the only hope for the girl and himself about to be taken from them, he dropped the girl and flung himself forward on the running board. One arm stole about Jack's neck. As the machine bounded forward wildly, Roberta screamed again and the car came to an abrupt stop.

A voice in Jack's ear had said: "Shut it off, you fool, until the girl gets in, or I'll strangle you. I don't mind telling you I'd enjoy doing it." Sir George, still with his hand on Jack's neck, motioned to Roberta to get in.

"Now you can hurry my man, as you've never hurried before. You'll hear something presently when the flames reach my car."

He was Jack's throat, as the girl climbed in, but still on the running board with his hand on Jack's arm, they dashed for the other side. There was a muffled explosion.

"There goes Ray's car," Sir George called to Roberta, smiling at her with an absurd, singed and blackened face. "He's a man badly marked for a minstrel show. And I was worried about not having enough petrol. He leaned heavily on Jack's shoulder and shouted in his ear. "Here comes the fire engine! We have only one chance in ten of getting off this bridge on dry land. Unless you rip out a little speed it will be a spectacular plunge into the Delaware for us."

"Oh, hurry!" screamed Roberta. The fire was running along the roof. The fire toward which they were making was screened with smoke, with here and there a little darting, flickering tongue of flame.

"To the left!" Sir George shouted in Jack's ear. "There's less fire there, and sound your horn, you fool! Make those idiots hear."

The horn sounded again and again. Through the smoke they could see people running hastily. Roberta could hear them call. "There's a car! Look out! There's a car coming through!"

"To the left!" roared Sir George and then he relinquished his hold on Jack and, gathering all his strength, leaped over and half-lifted, half-pulled Roberta across behind the driver. They rolled together off the car as Jack jumped, and the car smashed into the fire engine.

CHAPTER XIII

Sir George opened his eyes to a Danteque world on fire, or so it seemed to him. It was full of shouting, too. After a moment he saw that the bridge was flaming and burning to the skies and the noise was the shouting of the crowd at the crash and the main part of the bridge. It was a tremendously spectacular picture, quite terrible in the beauty.

He was about to give himself up to contemplating it, when his only half-awakened mind began to speculate where he was. Then as he moved slightly his whole mind was suddenly alert. He was in frightful pain, but that fact somehow did not puzzle him as much as the question, Where was he?

Roberta! He must have said it aloud for from somewhere above him he heard a voice say very gently: "I'm here, Sir George."

"Like a—like that Englishman gun things up? You're crazy. He put his foot on the self-starter."

Roberta promptly struck him across the face and pulled on the emergency brake. Before Jack could recover himself she was out of the car and running toward the fire. Through it, staggering, she tried to see tall form.

"Bobbie! Bobbie! Don't be frightened!" Sir George called. "I'm coming." Half sobbing Roberta MacBeth ran forward.

"Sir George, oh Sir George, I'm all right! Don't! Don't! Then she screamed.

Jack looked back. The tall figure with his clothes on fire, the car over his eyes, to shield them from the flames, came striding toward Roberta who, screaming, ran forward to meet him. Flung her arms about him and began beating out the flames with her bare hands. And as she beat at them the man picked her up in his arms and ran toward the fire.

The flames were licking nearer. They were terrific! Another bit of the road caught, and with a roar, the fire leaped forward. The bridge behind them was like a funnel full of flames. It was too much for Jack. He started the car, determined to get out of it at any cost. As for the girl, if she was fool enough to stick by that fellow she could stick, he was not going to wait for her. The wind was blowing the flames toward him now. Soon the two friends were in the silent forest. "Ah, it is lovely and quiet here," granted the fat pig. "What a lovely Fourth of July we shall have. Let's sit down on this soft moss and rest." Mr. Twistytail not only sat down and began to lie down as if in bed. He stretched, he yawned and the next moment his eyes closed and he began to sleep.

"Say! Look here!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "This won't do! You can't go to sleep here, Mr. Twistytail, and he shook him."

"Please don't bother me," murmured the pig. "Go away—let me sleep."

"But you mustn't go to sleep here!" cried the rabbit. "This isn't your bed and we came out here to have a rest. We must go farther into the woods."

"This is my bed!" murmured Mr. Twistytail. "I have my pyjamas on and whenever I have my pyjamas on I know I'm in bed and I must sleep. Please go away and let me sleep. Oh, how sleepy I am!" Uncle Wiggly didn't know what to do. It seemed silly for him to be there with Mr. Twistytail in his pyjamas asleep on the moss. And I don't know what would have happened except, just then, a July bug crawled on the fat sleeping pig and bit him on the ear. The pig thought it was his wife calling him to breakfast, so up he jumped.

"All right, my dear!" he cried, opening his eyes. And then, seeing Uncle Wiggly, he said, "Oh, what a funny dream I had! I thought I ate a fire-cracker." Uncle Wiggly laughed and so did the pig and then they decided they had better go back home and help the children celebrate Fourth of July, which they did, so everybody was happy.

And if, when the pussy cat washes her own face she will also wash the hands of the clock so it can eat breakfast with the gold fish. I'll tell you another story about Uncle Wiggly soon.

Warning to Wives Finds Worm Has Turned

LISTEN, sisters. There is a revolt of husbands on and it bodes no good to wives. The worm has turned at last and is striking at the heel that has so long flattened it out on the domestic hearth. And I am warning you. Husbands are no longer willing to take their wives "as is," as the shipping manifests say. They are demanding more of their wives than the old standardized wifely virtues. It used to be that if a woman was "good" she was safe in her job as a wife and her husband charged off his disappointment and disillusion to profit and loss and let it go at that.

But those halcyon times for wives are gone. Husbands demand that their wives should be not only good, but good for something. They are no longer satisfied with wives who are merely chaste. They are demanding something more. They are demanding that their wives shall keep themselves attractive looking, that they shall keep their brains furnished up so that they may be interesting to talk to; that they shall be pleasant and agreeable to live with and be progressive and modern in their viewpoints.

In short, they demand that their wives shall be 1930 models with streamline effects, painted up in the newest color combinations, self-starters and geared up to break the speed laws. And if wife isn't; if she persists in remaining a flivver with the paint knocked off in spots and if she groans and creaks when she hits the hard spots and never warms up to more than fifteen miles an hour, why she gets scrapped or husband trades off the old wife for a new one.

Believe me, my dears, the good, old, reliable, hump-shouldered husband who stuck to the bad marital bargain he made in his callow youth is just about as extinct as the dodo, and he is getting extinct all the time.

Every day I receive numbers of letters from middle-aged men who tell me that they are leaving their wives and why. They say that their wives feel that they have done their full duty as wives by being virtuous and bearing a child or two and making a reasonably comfortable home, but that they have made no effort to be companions to their husbands or to understand them or to sympathize with them. They haven't even shown them any real affection.

"Years ago I tried to interest my wife in the things that interested me," says one of these disgruntled husbands. "I tried to get her to read the books that I was reading. She said they bored her to death. I tried to talk to her on the subjects that held my attention, but she didn't even make the gesture of listening. She reads nothing but the society column in the newspapers. She does nothing but run around to futile clubs and play bridge. Her opinions are the same as when she was graduated from high school. She hasn't had a new idea in twenty years. She hasn't a single real heart interest except about clothes and contract bridge.

"I loved my wife when I married her, but do I love her now? I despise the very sight of her. Do I enjoy being with her? I can think of no worse torment. Is there another woman in the case? Certainly. Why shouldn't there be? Will I get a divorce? Surely. Why spoil the balance of my life living with a dull, stupid, narrow-minded, nagging woman? I have too much intelligence to do it.

"And I speak," the man went on, "for thousands of other husbands who are rebelling at the tyranny of being tied to women who have come to loathe, whose only virtue is chastity. They have failed in every other way as wives and we feel that it is cruelly unjust that we should be forced to have them hung like millstones around our necks.

"But we are not going to do it in the future, and if women want to keep their husbands they have got to get it out of their heads that all they have to do is to keep in the straight and narrow path. They have got to make themselves desirable if they want to be desired."

That is the middle-aged man's side of the question. Leaving out of the discussion the right or wrong of it, there is one phase of the matter to which I earnestly desire to call the attention of the middle-aged wives.

And it is this: In the immortal words of Mr. Cleveland, "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us," and the fact stares us in the face that the marriage ceremony in these days does not give a wife a quit-claim deed on a man until death parts them. No woman can now frame her marriage license and hang it over the bureau and sit down and fold her hands and let go at that.

Never was the position of the wife such a precarious one as it is at the present time, and the woman who wants to keep her husband has to be up and doing and repairing her fences all the time. In the past women felt that marriage gave them the right to slump and eat onions and generally let nature take its course in the way of fat and semper and dullness.

Few wives felt called upon to dress up to their husbands. Fewer still to jolly their husbands along, still fewer to be entertaining companions. Some didn't even think it necessary to be good housekeepers. A husband was somebody who had to pay his wife's bills, no matter how she treated him, and the position of wife was one that she didn't have to make good on, because it was a life situation that she couldn't lose if she tried.

But all that is changed. Every married man is now associated daily in business with women who are well-dressed and well-groomed; who are intelligent and efficient; who read and think and are full of new ideas and whose business it is to be diplomatic and suave and agreeable to their husbands. These women set a standard for women with which the wives have to compete, and woe to those who fail to make good.

Perhaps it is too late for the middle-aged wives who have let themselves grow stupid and nagging and narrow to do anything about it. They are sunk, but the warning is plain for all young wives. They must read and study to keep abreast of their husbands. They must make their husbands' interest their interest if they want to keep them from joining the revolt of husbands. For man's definition of a good wife has changed.

A "WITCH-DOCTOR'S" TRICK

People of every continent perform "magic tricks." Priests or "medicine men" among Indian tribes were in the custom of displaying such tricks at the time white men arrived in North America.

"Halt!" cried the witch-doctor, looking at the log.

In Africa the natives are amused and amazed by their men of magic—or "witch-doctors," as they are often called.

One day a group of white men traveling in Zululand paused near a native village. The chief witch-doctor agreed to perform a miracle for them. Leading his guests to the bank of a river, the witch-doctor picked up a log and placed it in the river. The log floated downstream until the negro shouted a native word meaning, "Halt!"

As the command was uttered the log was seen to remain where it was! "Travel back!" cried the Zulu magician, in words of his own language. "Wonder of wonders! The log was brought back!"

When it was back to the place from which it had started, the witch-doctor waded into the water and pulled the log ashore.

"Tell us the secret!" the white men begged.

The witch-doctor at last agreed to do so, after the white promised not to reveal the secret to any member of the tribe. This is how he explained the trick:

"I had the log ready before you came. There were two cords fastened to it. One short cord was near this shore, tied to a stake under the water. The other cord was very long and ran under water to those bushes across the river. I have a man over there. When I put the log in the water, he waited until I gave him the signal to stop letting out the cord. Then he drew the cord in, and the log was pulled upstream."

"What did you do with the cords when you brought the log ashore?"

"They were fastened to a small branch on the log. I broke off the branch when I went out to get the log."

LONDON SPEECH OF FERGUSON IS COMMONS TOPIC

King and Lapointe Question Bennett on Privy Council Appeal Remarks

Ottawa, July 3.—The Dominion Day speech in London of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, came up in the Commons yesterday afternoon.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Liberal Minister of Justice, asked the Prime Minister if a copy of the speech had been submitted to him by the High Commissioner for approval.

Premier Bennett replied in the negative. Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, suggested the remarks of the High Commissioner regarding appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London might be regarded as a reflection on the Canadian judiciary.

Premier Bennett disagreed with this. DISPATCH QUOTED

Mr. King had referred to a Canadian Press cable dispatch from London stating Mr. Ferguson had spoken of appeals to the Privy Council in London, and the following quotation had been attributed to Mr. Ferguson: "Some times we have heard from men of short vision and small calibre that we have the brains in Canada to decide such a question of appeal."

Members who had participated in the debate on the appeals to the Privy Council yesterday were not men of "short vision" or "small calibre," and the statement of Mr. Ferguson was also a reflection on the judiciary of the country.

The Prime Minister stated he had no reason to know whether the report referred to was correct or inaccurate. "I cannot think honorable gentlemen opposite," Premier Bennett declared, "had any larger means of knowledge than I have in that regard. But this I will say: I have received several communications recently and I doubt not that some honorable members have seen an article which appeared in an English paper wondering exactly why it was that so many people in Canada, but not elsewhere, were directing attention to the speeches of the High Commissioner of Canada in England."

SAYS MESSAGES RECEIVED
"It would seem, as the paper indicated, that they seize on a paragraph or sentence unrelated to the text and from that endeavor to have it appear the utterances of the High Commissioner are out of line with Canadian sentiment. Be that as it may, this I do state with certainty, that he is fulfilling his duties with great acceptance to the people of England, as is indicated not only by the very large number of communications which have come to me since the attacks were made on him in this House, but also by the public press itself. In view of the fact that in so many instances unrelated sentences of his addresses have been seized on, I should have to be satisfied definitely not only as to the accuracy of the report just read by the right honorable gentleman, but also as to how it was said and when."

DANGER OF JOKES
"As I indicated some days ago, in matters of this kind—very frequently observations have been made in a jocular sense, but when they appear in print they seem very serious indeed. That has happened on more than one occasion and to more than one public man, for the reason that in a printed speech you cannot get the inflection of the voice nor can you reproduce the facial expression as the words are uttered, so that in many instances what seems to be nothing more than a passing joke has been taken as a serious declaration or statement, because of that inability to translate the jocular into cold print. So I have no

HEADACHES Ended by Kruschen

"I was a martyr to headaches, with frequent attacks of dizziness affecting my vision. My occupation is a very sedentary one—a printer's reader. I gave Kruschen Salts a good trial, and from then onwards I seemed quite another person. The headaches disappeared and the dizziness, and the most wonderful thing to me is that I have gone back to weaker glasses, a lens which I had discarded some years ago as not being strong enough. I also suffered from bad circulation during the early mornings of winter. Now at fifty-eight I can enjoy cold baths all the year round, enjoy and am eager for my food, and am what I consider very fit—the sort of fitness that makes living a joy."—(G. F.)

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach or to partial constipation—a complaint many indoor workers suffer from without ever suspecting it.

Kruschen Salts go right down to the root of the trouble and remove the cause by gently persuading the organs of elimination to function exactly as Nature intended they should. (Adv.)

doubt that in many instances the remarks which have been attributed to the High Commissioner—and the in particular which is recalled to my memory at the moment—have been in a jocular way and were not intended to be treated seriously.

"So perhaps under the circumstances the right honorable gentleman will conclude he is somewhat in error in thinking the High Commissioner for Canada is endeavoring in any sense to cast aspersions on the judiciary of this country."

NO DISSENTING JUDGMENTS
"For my own part, I have always felt the value of an appeal to the Privy Council was that we escaped the possibility of dissenting judgments. In that a single opinion was given in the advice tendered to His Majesty, which has a most beneficial effect on the construction of our constitution and the body of jurisprudence which has been created by those opinions and judgments."

Every one of us in the legal profession is well aware that in the various opinions which have been expressed with respect to the construction of our constitution in our own courts, we have had great difficulties arise. When it is crystallized into a single opinion and the jurisprudence has been built up from precedent to precedent, each case taking full cognizance of the case which preceded it, we have as a result a body of jurisprudence in connection with the interpretation of the British North America Act which, in my humble judgment, it would have been quite impossible to create if there had been no court of appeal such as this.

"Whether or not the time has arrived when this practice should cease, it is not for me to say at this time, but I do say to my right honorable friend that I am satisfied that my observations made by the High Commissioner were not meant in any sense to reflect either on the capacity or ability of his fellow Canadians or on their judicial qualities. I think that may be taken for granted."

QUESTION OF INSTRUCTIONS
Mr. King said the Prime Minister was entitled to express any views he might have in respect to appeals to the Privy Council, but he would ask whether the Prime Minister thought "the High Commissioner for Canada, speaking in public, should deal at all with that question except by instruction from the Prime Minister, for which the Prime Minister must take full responsibility."

"I am bound to say," Premier Bennett replied, "that I have never heard of any government instructing its High Commissioner to make a public statement of that kind on Dominion Day. It is certain that Lord Strathcona

CHINESE COUPLE SEEK CUSTODY OF CHILDREN HERE
Vancouver, July 3.—Three Chinese children remain in a missionary home at Victoria pending hearing in Supreme Court here on September 23 by Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonnell's order to custody of the respective parents.

The father, Wong Dew, Vancouver, has the support of the Wong Tong and J. A. Russell as co-counsel. The mother, Mah Hang, is represented by M. B. O'Dell.

On the eve of departure for China, the mother, accompanied by her children, was halted by a writ of habeas corpus. The parents were married by Chinese custom at Cumberland eight years ago, but the marriage, it is said, has no legal effect in British Columbia. The children are two boys, aged seven and six, and a girl of four.
